TWO BURNED TO DEATH IN CRASH

P. O. Officials Accused Of Aiding Steel Strikers

MESSAGE IS INTRODUCED BY SENATOR

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(UP)—Sen. H. Styles Bridges, R., N. H., today presented to the post office committee charges that postal officials permitted "deliberate tampering" with the mails by strikers blockading Ohio steel plants.

Bridges presented to the committee a telegram from two Committee For Industrial Organization representatives asserting that they had "an understanding" with postal officials as to the type of mail to be delivered through steel plant picket lines.

Bridges introduced the telegram, addressed to himself, after First Assistant Postmaster General W. W. Howes flatly denied to the committee that postal officials had ever discussed "conspiracy" of the mails with union representatives.

"This raises a direct issue," Bridges said, facing Howes across the green topped committee table. "I can't believe that there would be a deliberate misstatement here but I will prove that the post office department has been misinformed."

He then read the following telegram from C. B. Galloway and Walter J. Payne of the Steel Workers' organizing committee. "Relative to the postal question at Niles, O., Mr. Galloway and Mr. Walter J. Payne did not handle or inspect any packages at the Niles post office. We simply had an understanding with the postmaster, assistant postmaster and the inspector of Youngstown, O., as to what kind of packages would pass through the picket lines and what kind would not pass."

"It was agreed that all regular mail would go through but packages containing clothes and food-stuffs could not as they were irregular. The action taken during the situation was to maintain peace and order and that we have accomplished."

CONTACT SEEN IN KIDNAP CASE

STONY BROOK, N. Y., June 11.—(UP)—A report that contact had been established with the kidnapers of Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons spread today after a taxicab driver went to her home here and conferred with her husband, William H. Parsons.

The cabman drove away within a few minutes. A man believed to be Mrs. Parsons' brother, Frank McDonnell, followed him. Police and detectives prevented newspapermen and photographers from following the cars.

The activity occurred after federal and state investigators had withdrawn to Stony Brook to leave Parsons free to negotiate directly for the return of his 33 year old, social register wife, held for $25,000 ransom.

Parsons felt that his wife was in danger. He appealed to department of justice agents and state police to withdraw from his 11-acre farm so that he could contact the person or persons who warned him that "if any cops are around you'll pay for it and she will never speak again."

Rhea Whitley, in charge of federal agents in the New York area, said that "certain things" indicated that the crime was the work of an amateur.

Fails to Win Prize So Wrecks Bar

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—(UP)—James Sutherland, 35, was arrested today charged with disturbing the peace, suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and malicious mischief. Here, according to police, is what he did:

Angered when he failed to win a punch board prize in a nearby Reseda beer parlor, he pulled eight counter stools off their bases, smashed the bar mirror, wrecked the refrigerator, demolished the candy machines, and then pulled a gun when Stanley Newman, an employee of the place, tried to stop him.

8 SOVIET ARMY HEADS ON TRIAL

MOSCOW, June 11.—(UP)—Eight of the highest officers in the Red Army of which Russia is so proud, were on trial for their lives as traitors today before a tribunal of their peers.

Confessions Claimed

It was announced that all had confessed to complicity in a treason and espionage plot in behalf of a foreign state, as part of which they supplied information and engaged in sabotage. Their motive, it was charged, was to weaken the army in preparation for a foreign attack on Russia which was to culminate in a restoration of capitalism.

They were tried under a special law by which no plea for mercy, no desire by high officials to exercise clemency, is of avail. Conviction would mean that they must face a firing squad in a prison courtyard within 24 hours.

Espionage Charged

The official newspaper Pravda said that the espionage was in behalf of a "fascist" country which had been active in sending spies to Russia. Numerous Germans have been charged with espionage.

The defendants are:

Marshal Mikhail Tukhachevsky, the brilliant former vice commissar of defense, who on May 11 was shifted to command of the Volga area and a few days ago was replaced there.

Gen. R. P. Elderman, chief of the Osoaviakhim, the vitally important civilian aviation organization which is an auxiliary of the air force.

Gen. B. M. Feldman, chief of the administrative board of the commissariat of defense.

Former Army Chief

Gen. A. I. Korik, commander of the Moscow garrison and former chief of the army war college.

Gen. K. V. Putna, former military attaché at London, and previously attaché at Berlin and Tokyo—captains of the two chief anti-Russian nations.

Gen. J. E. Jakir, only a month ago sent to the important Leningrad army command.

Gen. J. P. Uborevitch, recently replaced as commander of the White Russian garrison.

Gen. V. M. Preimakov.

These men, flower of an army of 1,300,000 men, faced the highest and most dreaded court in the Soviet union, the military collegium of the supreme court.

WARSHIP AGROUND ON S. F. MUD FLATS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—(UP)—The U. S. navy battleship Tennessee, with 1400 officers and men aboard, grounded today in mud flats on San Francisco bay one and a half miles south of the Alameda city pier.

The vessel came into San Francisco bay from Puget Sound at 8:30 a. m. and apparently was swinging around the bay preparatory to anchoring when a misjudgment of the mud flats sent it aground.

The Tennessee's message said she was trying to get free under her own power. It was believed tugs otherwise could float her out.

Fourteen hundred officers and crew members were aboard the battleship.

The tug Sea King, Sea Scout, Sea Ranger and Reliance were dispatched to the scene by the Red Stack company.

Ice Test Of Citrus Man Is Success

George Barfoot, Anaheim grower, who gave his oranges and trees an overcoat of ice last winter, is having the last long laugh. And it's a nice tinkly laugh, like money clinking together.

Remember Barfoot? Remember the wintery scene created in his 10-acre grove on South Los Angeles street last January?

Results Fantastic

When other citrus growers got out the smudge pots, or wished for some to get out, Barfoot started his overhead irrigation system. The result's were fantastic.

Oranges became glazed with a thick coat of ice. Leaves of trees gleamed next morning when the sun struggled through the smoke-filled air to fall upon the scene. Icicles a foot long hung from branches and a few instances broke small limbs.

The spectacle was so unusual that hundreds of motorists stopped for pictures. Many tried to walk through the grove; some did, and others found their California footwear unsuited to the Alaskan condition found under the trees. They fell down, sat down or retreated in dismay.

Attracted Wide Attention

The incident attracted national attention. At least one magazine of national circulation recounted the experiment with some evidence of glee. Local observers nodded and smiled wisely, but Barfoot continued to maintain his idea was sound.

Ice gets only 32 degrees cold, he argued. Fruit does not freeze at 32 degrees, and if incased in a coating of that temperature it is safe.

All that was in January.

This week the Barfoot grove was picked, yielding 1145 field boxes which packed out 1190 packed boxes.

None of the fruit rejected as unmarketable was frozen, but was thrown out solely because of small sizes or because of skin scars. Tests of the fruit which was shipped revealed only a few slight traces of frost, and these not enough to cause rejection, according to H. W. Pierce, manager of the Anaheim Co-operative association, which handled the fruit.

In contrast to this there are groves in the vicinity which suffered such severe frost damage that fruit will not be picked, local house managers report.

In good years the Barfoot grove produces 5,000 field boxes, and the smaller yield this season is explained by its owner as due to fumigation damage. Considerable drop was noted and is blamed to weakness induced by the wrong kind of weather following the application of gas. For the 1936 season the grove picked 1380 boxes which packed out 138. Severe winds of the early winter had caused severe loss that year.

AMELIA ARRIVES AT AFRICAN CITY

PORT LAMY, Africa, June 11.—(UP)—Amelia Earhart, on her leisurely flight around the world, arrived here from Gao at 12:55 p. m. Greenwich time today (8:55 a. m. EDT).

Mrs. Earhart averaged 135 miles an hour over one of the most difficult sections of her flight across Africa. She was obliged to fly low to follow the few landmarks and was hampered by dense vapors arising from the forests. Nearing Port Lamy, she flew over a herd of hippopotami in the Chari river.

GANG SUSPECT HELD

LEAD, S. D., June 11.—(UP)—Parker Du Pont, accused of leading a gang suspected of stealing as much as $1,000,000 worth of gold ore from the Homestake Mining company, was held under $5000 bond today awaiting circuit court action.

STAR'S BODY TO BE PLACED IN CRYPT

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—(UP)—The body of Jean Harlow will not be cremated but will be placed in a crypt in Forest Lawn Memorial park, a spokesman for the star's family announced today.

The body of the actress will be transferred from its temporary resting place in "Wee Kirk o' the Heather" to the "Sanctuary of Benediction" some time next week.

Decision to place the body in the crypt near those of Will Rogers, Marie Dressler, Florenz Ziegfeld, and other stars of the amusement world was made after relatives paid a secret visit to the chapel yesterday.

Mrs. Jean Bello, mother of the actress, was accompanied by Dr. Monte Carpenter, Miss Harlow's father, and William Powell, screen star and rumored fiancé of the late film player in the trip to the chapel where last rites were conducted Wednesday.

Authorities acted on information that Sands may be a race "tout" at the Agua Caliente track.

Their information came, they said, from a man who said: "This fellow did me dirt 12 years ago. Now I'm going to put the finger on him."

OFFICERS SEEK TAYLOR VALET

TIJUANA, Mex., June 11.—(UP)—On a tip from a supposedly vengeful informant, detectives made the rounds of resorts in this Mexican border town early today in search of Edward F. Sands, missing valet of the murdered movie director, William Desmond Taylor.

The detectives said partial verification of the "tip" came when Jose Gonzales, Tijuana police officer, identified an old photograph of Sands as that of a man seen recently in several bordertown dives.

It was said several bartenders here also tentatively had identified the photograph as that of a recent patron.

COMMITTEE BACKS PORT, RIVER BILL

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(UP)—The house appropriations committee today reported favorably a bill allocating $194,328,363 for rivers and harbors and flood control work during the 1938 fiscal year.

The measure provides funds for non-military activities of the war department. In previous years the appropriation was carried in the regular war department bill. For military activities of the department congress this year appropriated $416,000,000.

The bill, as recommended to the house, provided $37,177,899 for rivers and harbors maintenance, $90,822,101 for new river and harbor work and more than $53,000,000 for flood control.

The bill was $47,181 less than budget recommendations and $3,736,378 more than provided last year for the same purposes.

A total of $814,500 was provided for flood control on the Sacramento river, Calif., a sum sufficient, the committee said, "to bring the flood control project on that river to a close."

The committee urged that relief funds supplement the recommended flood control appropriations.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The board of army engineers listed the following projects today as among those tentatively designed to share in the $90,000,000 provided in the war department non-military appropriation bill for new rivers and harbors work:

Harbors and channels, Pacific coast:

Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors, Calif., $1,375,000; San Joaquin river, Calif., $33,000; Sacramento river and tributaries, Calif., debris control, $1,500,000; Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers, $6,500,000.

Rep. Fish In Demand For F. D. R. Quiz

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(UP)—Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R., N. Y., today demanded that the congressional joint committee for inquiry into tax evasions and avoidance "first investigate President Roosevelt."

Inquiry Bill Signed

Fish made his demand in the midst of house debate on extension for two years of approximately $500,000,000 in nuisance taxes. His statement came just as President Roosevelt signed at the White House the bill authorizing the tax inquiry.

During a slashing attack on New Deal financial and gold policies, Fish shouted:

"I am informed on reliable authority that the president has deducted his income losses from his Hyde Park estate in my district. This is not a farm but a palatial estate. If you are going to investigate tax dodging, let's begin with Mr. Roosevelt."

"Begin at Top"

With the speaker rapping and shouting to Fish that his "time had expired," the congressman said that if "we are going to investigate income taxes, let us begin at the top."

"What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," Fish said.

END STRIKE OF MOVIE WORKERS

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—(UP)—The six weeks old movie strike ended today union heads announced. They said an agreement was reached last night sending 2200 craft workers to their jobs in the studios today.

Strikers were reported to have been granted their major demand, a "preferential" shop. It was on this point that the walkout was called by the Federated Motion Picture crafts comprising studio painters, make-up artists, scenic artists and other technical unions. Starting at nine major studios, the strike spread last week to the 28 independent movie lots.

Wage and hour demands will be negotiated.

Headquarters of the crafts federation said a written agreement was reached at a conference last night. The long drawn out negotiations were brought to a head suddenly by Charles Lessing, head of the federation, and Pat Casey, representing the producers' committee.

Lessing, whose ouster was demanded by rival union elements, will continue as the workers' negotiator, it was reported. An arbitration board of one producer and one union representative will be chosen to iron out all further difficulties.

MAYOR TO ASK MARTIAL LAW

BULLETIN

MONROE, Mich., June 11.—(UP)—Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs today said he would ask the city commission to approve a formal request that Gov. Frank Murphy declare martial law here.

CLEVELAND, June 11.—(UP)—The federal government and the governors of three states attempted today to hold the steel strike in check while unionists became increasingly bitter following the rout of their forces at Monroe, Mich.

The developments, which crowded swiftly on the other, included:

Michigan City Quiet

1.—Monroe, where 300 special "vigilante" police smashed the picket line in a tear gas battle, was quiet after a night of alarm. Threatened invasion of the city by thousands of C. I. O. automobile workers from Pontiac, Mich., was averted by the plea of Auto Union President Homer Martin.

President Steel corporation's subsidiary plant in Monroe, reopened by workmen who streamed into it in the wake of yesterday's tear gas, claimed to be operating almost normally. Five hundred vigilantes who had been on call at Monroe during the night, were demobilized but told to remain ready for any new crisis.

Davey Holds Conference

2.—Gov. Martin I. Davey of Ohio held the first joint conference of both sides since the strike began 16 days ago. Steel companies reiterated they would not sign the contract proposed by the striking

HOSPITAL ORDERLIES DIE ON ERRAND OF MERCY

Cremation of two Orange county hospital orderlies in the ambulance they were rushing on an errand of mercy, marked the story of tragedy added to Orange county's traffic fatality record last evening at First and Verano. The ambulance collided with a car, careening into and destroying grocery store and service station. Pictured below, upper, from roof of Roy Head's home, are charred remains of buildings. In lower picture, a crowd is shown gathered about what, a few minutes before, was an ambulance carrying two men. George Peterkin, California highway patrol officer, made the camera shots.

Police said the photograph used was taken in 1921 before the Taylor slaying.

Officers said that Gonzales and the bartenders all recognized the suspect by a distinctive facial scar.

Sands has been sought for questioning ever since Taylor, famous builder of film stars, and sweetheart of Mary Miles Minter, was shot to death in his Hollywood bungalow 15 years ago.

Authorities acted on information that Sands may be a race "tout" at the Agua Caliente track.

Their information came, they said, from a man who said: "This fellow did me dirt 12 years ago. Now I'm going to put the finger on him."

Broadway Dancer And Athlete Wed

WHEATON, Ill., June 11.—(UP)—Heloise Martin, 20, former Drake university co-ed and later Broadway dancer, was reported married today to Ernest F. German Jr., 21, football player who posed with her in a national magazine's now famous "Life in the Day of a Co-ed."

The couple obtained a marriage license here yesterday. The Rev. C. B. Newsum reportedly performed the ceremony but wouldn't talk about it.

CARS, STORE, GAS STATION DESTROYED

The most spectacular traffic accident in Orange county history, at First street and Verano road, two miles west of Santa Ana, last evening, cremated two Orange county hospital orderlies, ambulance drivers who were speeding on an errand of mercy, burned two automobiles, a service station and grocery store.

Driving south on Verano road toward Juarez Mexican colony, near Wintersburg district, to carry Edna Hernandez, 12, suffering from acute appendicitis, and her sister, Teresa, 10, suffering from scarlet fever, to the hospital, Ernest Biggs, 32, 1907 New Jersey street, Los Angeles, and his companion, Ray Riley, 27, 206 North Ross, Santa Ana, were burned to death as their ambulance and a Willys sedan, operated by Charles C. Wilson, 24, 417 East Second, collided with terrific impact.

The ambulance careened into Roy Head's General Petroleum service station pumps. After overturning gasoline exploded and the men burned as helpless onlookers stood by listening to the horrified screams of one man who, still conscious, was pinned in the burning ambulance.

The Wilson car, which had been traveling westerly along First street, was set afire and burned but Wilson escaped as persons at the scene dragged him from the wreckage. He suffered head injuries and was stunned but will be able to go

TWO MEN DIE IN CAR CRASH

Home today from Santa Ana Valley hospital, where he was taken by the Orange County Ambulance service.

When the service station pumps exploded, gasoline set fire to the grocery store, belonging to Head. It burned to the ground. Eight members of the State Forestry division fire suppression crew, headed by Assistant Chief Rollo Hazeltine, from Orange and Midway City, with 400-gallon and 550-gallon pumps assisted by the Garden Grove and Santa Ana fire fighters, succeeded in saving the Head home adjacent, though it was damaged.

Head narrowly escaped with his life as he stood in front of the store. Seeing the speeding ambulance, with siren blowing, catapulting toward him, he dashed out of the rear door. His daughter, blossom, 7, playing in the yard, was knocked to the ground by flying timbers. She suffered slight head injuries. Her father rescued her and carried her to safety.

Mrs. Head, daughter, Eulalie, 22, who becomes a graduate of UCLA today, and son, Danny, who had stepped from a bus but a moment before and narrowly avoided injury were unharmed.

Rube Farnsworth and Gus Ward, neighbors, were reported standing near the scene and they, too, narrowly escaped.

Firemen poured water on 40 oil-filled barrels which threatened to explode, as a crowd jammed the scene and blocked traffic. Head said his loss would approximate $1500; it included 40 barrels of oil and gasoline in the pumps. A 10,000-gallon gas tank beneath the ground was not threatened.

Inquest on Monday

Bodies of Biggs, reported to have been a married man, and Riley, a single man from Crider, Ky., were removed to the Brown and Wagner funeral chapel, where Deputy Coroner Bert Castiel, who investigated, said an inquest will be held Monday at 3 p.m.

Members of the excited crowd believed Wilson's wife and six-month-old baby daughter, Charline, had been in the car with him but a two-hour checkup by police revealed she was visiting Wilson's mother, resident of 119 Main street, Huntington Beach.

Wilson, Head said he believed, was traveling approximately 60 miles per hour on the "through" first street, at the time, and apparently failed to hear the ambulance siren as it sounded for clearance at the boulevard stop on Verano. Wilson, Smart and Final company employee here, was en route to visit his family at the time. Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Reithour, grocers at 1070 West First, Santa Ana.

Strangely enough, according to Fred Bockover, employee of Al's Wrecking yard, near the accident scene, the wrecking company pump engine, which provides 100 gallons of chemical as protection against fire, had been torn down a few minutes before the accident and could not be put into service.

Assisted by police and the crowd, furnishings of the Head home were moved into the yard as the fire gained headway. Head said he realized he could not help the victims, although he and others made every effort to do so.

California Highway Officers Dan Adams and George Peterkin and Santa Ana police, Capt. R. S. Elliott, George Boyd and Burnette Lane investigated and directed traffic at the scene. They reported the ambulance traveled 80 feet before striking the service station and the Wilson car traveled 90 feet. Both cars were consumed in the flames.

Edna and Teresa Hernandez, children of Mrs. Ottilia Hernandez, were removed to county hospital by another ambulance after the accident. Deputy Sheriff Walt Duncan and Fred Swayze were called to guard at the scene at 10:30 p.m., after Head reported, persons were attempting to carry off grocery store and service station goods as looted.

Today some criticism was registered with fire, police and telephone officials because of delay in answering the call to the tragedy scene. And both W. H. Smith, operating the Orange County Ambulance service, and Rollo Hazeltine of the state division of forestry, asked that the public use care in observing the law with regard to emergency cars.

Hazeltine's fire truck from Orange arrived at the scene approximately 15 minutes after the collision. He said several motorists failed to stop at sound of the siren and he narrowly avoided collisions, himself. Smith, who carried Wilson to the hospital, said several motorists failed to stop when he rushed to the hospital, sounding the siren. The state law provides motorists must drive to the side of the highway and stop when an emergency car, sounding siren, approaches.

George Bates, civil engineer, 165 West Fifth, who is vice president of Orange County Forestry association, said he heard criticism against officials. "Had the call gone through as it should, the response would have been much better," he said. "All the public need remember in such cases is to call the telephone company operator. She will do the rest."

Man Ordered To Appear In Court

Arrested by California highway officers this week, Jess C. Reinling, 26, Angelina apartments, Anaheim, and Arthur Kistler, 24, Walnut Park, must appear later this month before Justice Kenneth Morrison on speeding charges.

Reinling was charged with speeding 73 miles per hour on South Main; he must appear June 21 at 10 a.m. Kistler, charged with speeding 55 miles per hour, on Newport road, must appear June 25 at the same hour.

PARK EXPERTS GUESTS HERE FOR CONCLAVE

Santa Ana today is host to the Park Administration association in an all-day session, an honor won recently in a competition with numerous Southern California cities, Dale Griggs, local park superintendent, is master of ceremonies.

The association, composed of park officials from cities throughout the state, at a noon luncheon at the Green Cat cafe, discussed "Parkways and Parkway Plantings". Gilbert Skutt, Los Angeles park head, and president of the organization, was general chairman for the occasion.

Other Discussions

At 10 a. m., the group made a tour of the old and new parkways throughout the town to examine plantings and later made a trip to Santiago creek and Jack Fisher parks and the Charles W. Bowens Memorial museum.

At the luncheon each guest introduced himself and made comments regarding Santa Ana's parks and parkways.

During the afternoon the subject will be discussed more thoroughly, and recommendations will be made. Griggs, who attended the last meeting in Griffith park, Los Angeles, was instrumental in having Santa Ana chosen as the second meeting place of the newly organized group.

TEAMSTERS' UNION OPENS CIO ATTACK

SEATTLE, Wash., June 11.—(UP)—An attack on the committee for Industrial Organization was opened today by the Teamsters' union an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

The attack was made through a five day convention of the teamsters from the 11 western states, British Columbia and the state of Illinois.

The convention was called by Dave Beck, international vice president of the teamsters, and an outstanding labor leader in the northwest.

It was called, labor leaders said, to combat efforts of maritime unions, now in convention in Portland, Ore., to swing Pacific coast unions from the AFOL to the CIO.

COUNTY ESCAPES DAMAGE BY QUAKE

An earthquake centering in the vicinity of Anaheim shook that city and the southern part of Orange county last night. A check this morning revealed that, while the quake rattled dishes and shook windows in the area, no damage was done.

According to Martin Murray, who has a seismograph at his home in Boulevard Gardens, the quake centered between 15 and 20 miles east of that location, or not far from Anaheim.

Murray said that while the quake continued for 10 second the shock was felt for only three seconds. It was of the rolling variety indicating that it was an earth movement and not a quake of volcanic type.

Anheim residents said that the tremor was preceded by a rumbling sound. The shock was felt in Santa Ana and a slight tremor was noticed in some parts of Los Angeles.

Seismologists at the Carnegie laboratory in Pasadena said the quake was a local one with the epicenter a few miles from Anaheim.

During 1935, 68,100,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical power were produced by means of steam in the United States, as compared to 555,197,445,000 kilowatt hours the preceding year.

OFFICIALS ACT TO HALT RIOTS

C. I. O. Steel Workers' organizing committee.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins sent Mediator James Dewey to sit-in at Davey's conference in Columbus as a federal representative. Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady announced he would start home from Switzerland tonight to help in the steel crisis.

Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana conferred separately with executives of the strikers and of the two affected companies that have plants in that state.

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan called in sheriffs of three counties to discuss the "current unrest" in Monroe and Pontiac.

A Republic corporation airplane was raked with shotgun fire as it rose from the Cleveland field which Mayor Harold H. Burton has ordered the company to stop using at midnight tonight. The plane, with 40 pellets in it, chased for 30 miles the automobile from which the shots were fired. On the pilot's description, five men were arrested as suspects.

Federal Judge Samuel H. West in Cleveland, after a hearing took under advisement a motion by the steel union for dismissal of a petition by three railroads which sought an injunction against interference with their trains by strikers and pickets.

The strike spread to Bethlehem Steel's huge Cambria plant at Johnstown, Pa., which employs 15,000. The union previously had not moved against this company, second largest steel producer in the country. The Steel Workers' Organizing committee set the walk-out for tonight, following a strike by railroad men employed in mill operations.

Robert Burke, recently expelled Columbia university student and S. W. O. C. organizer, was held for the grand jury in Youngstown, O., on charges of shooting to wound or kill.

The Youngstown city council was called to meet tonight to grant Mayor Lionel Evans emergency powers in event a general strike is called. Some unions were sounding out general labor sentiment on the question of calling such a strike in protest against activities of the police and sheriff against steel strikers. Mayor Evans received letters threatening him with bodily harm.

Three-Floor Fall Only Blacks Eye

There is more than one story about this magnificent black eye, three of them, in fact—the three that Dora Marie Aubry, 14 months, fell from the apartment of her parents in Buffalo, N. Y. But she suffered no other injuries.

FISH DEMANDS F. D. R. INQUIRY

Fish's attack on the New Deal's policies, which, he said, "went round and round and came out nowhere" came after repeated criticism of the proposed two year extension of nuisance levies.

Rep. Allen Treadway, R. Mass., Chairman John J. O'Connor, D. N. Y., of the house rules committee, and Rep. Harold Knutson, R. Minn., led the attack.

Fish told the house that if the president was within bounds in deducting his Hyde Park farm losses, perhaps other deductions were in order and it was up to congress to "get the facts."

If some of Hollywood's animal actors can hang up records for longevity, they'll be taken care of in their last days. The business office of Universal methodically has been deducting 1 per cent from paychecks for the services of horses, dogs, pigeons and the like for the federal old age pension. "How long since you've seen a chimpanzee with a Social Security number?" asks NEA correspondent Paul Harrison.

STORK WINS

The automobile lost another race to Old Man Stork last night in Seal Beach when a son was born to Mrs. Frances Wilson, 28, of 125 Sixth street, Seal Beach, as she was being driven in an automobile in search of a physician.

Unable to locate a doctor the driver of the automobile in which Mrs. Wilson was riding notified Seal Beach police, who, in turn, called Dr. W. D. McDougal, Long Beach police surgeon.

Arriving at the Wilson home, Dr. Dougal found the mother and baby in good condition. The father, a restaurant employee, was at work when the boy was born.

WORKERS HYSTERICS PUZZLE PHYSICIANS

PARIS, June 11.—(UP)—Medical and psychological specialists puzzled today over a mysterious hysterical manifestation by 200 young women at a sugar refinery at Lille. For the time being they would venture only to call it an incomprehensible collective psychopathological attack.

Four hundred young women were working in one big room at the factory yesterday. One fell to the floor, apparently unconscious. Others hurried to aid her. But, according to the stories told today, as they reached the prostrate woman, the others began to shriek, whirl about as if dizzy, and fell to the ground. Some fainted, it was said.

More women started for the scene, it was said, and these went into convulsions, apparently affected by the sight of the first victims. Some of the women attacked others, it was asserted, and there was tearing of clothes, ear pulling and raking of faces with fingernails.

SOIL PROGRAM WORKERS WILL MEET TONIGHT

Orange county committeemen of the agricultural soil conservation program will meet at 7:30 p. m. today in the Farm Bureau hall to discuss recommendations and provisions for the 1938 program.

W. H. Cory, agricultural extension service agent, said the main objective of the program is to assist Orange county agriculture in securing the best soil fertility possible.

Second Year

These meetings are being conducted in every county in the state and also are being held throughout the nation.

This is the second year that the Department of Agriculture has endeavored to give agriculture an opportunity of expressing its wishes and recommendations to carry out this vast undertaking, Cory said.

"It has been designed to meet the needs of the respective localities in which it is being operated. "Since it is a program that is designed to conserve soil fertility and therefore a long-time program. It has never been necessary to develop such an undertaking along these lines before, so the provisions we now are making will establish a precedent.

Cites Importance
"More attention is being paid to agricultural land and farming practices designed to preserve the soil fertility in order to maintain an adequate food supply for the needs of future generations."

He pointed out that Orange county primarily is agricultural with the annual returns from the soil passing those of oil production.

ROE SERVICES TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Arabella Roe, 87, who died yesterday at her home in Costa Mesa, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Dixon chapel, Costa Mesa.

The Rev. William R. Hessel, pastor of Christ's Church-by-the-Sea, will officiate. Interment will be in Westminster Memorial Park.

Mrs. Roe, a native of New Jersey, had lived in Orange county for 20 years and was a resident of California for the past 30 years. In addition to her husband, William Pierce Roe, she is survived by a brother, W. H. Wilson; two nieces, Mrs. Edna Hart and Mrs. Andrew Mandary, all of Costa Mesa; and two nephews, Harold Wilson, East Chicago, Ill., and Howard Wilson, Geneseo, Ill.

Picnics and Reunions

Former residents of Nemaha county, Kansas, will hold their annual picnic at Irvine Park on Sunday, June 13, according to notices sent out by J. E. Prentice of Santa Ana president of the society. Lunch will be served at 12:30 p. m.

Commencement of Romance

It's amazing what natural talent for romance these sailors have. Certainly there's no course in kissing at Annapolis, yet Gordon G. Matheson, newly graduated to his ensignship, shows a flair for spectacular withers. That is Martha Withers, home-town sweetheart from Columbia, S. C., who's walking on air.

WPA WILL MARK SPECIAL EVENT

Following issuance of a proclamation by Gov. Frank F. Merriam setting aside the week beginning June 21 as "Public Recreation Week," WPA recreational supervisors have been working at top speed preparing for the launching of a county-wide observance of the event.

Mayor Fred Rowland said today that he is endorsing the proclamation issued by Governor Merriam and urges every citizen of Santa Ana to observe the week.

Recreation week will open in Santa Ana with handicraft displays at all playgrounds and recreational centers. Each day will feature a different phase of the work, such as music, hobbies, dramatics, social, sports and on the final day out-of-doors recreation.

Trustot Lindsey, WPA recreational director for the county, is urging the citizens of Orange county to take time during the week to inform themselves of the activities and facilities available to them through public recreation agencies. To assist the citizens in obtaining this knowledge, exhibits will be arranged and public meetings held for discussion of the philosophy, aims and objectives of the recreational programs.

The cafeteria kitchen of the new Interior Department building at Washington, D. C., has four 60-gallon soup kettles.

Congressman Sheppard To Speak Here At Dinner Session Of County Group

Making his first public appearance here since his election, Congressman Harry R. Sheppard will be the principal speaker at a dinner to be given in his honor at 6:30 p. m., July 1, by the Orange county unit of the California Assembly of Democrats.

Plans for the dinner meeting were announced today by Chester I. Dale, general chairman of the local assembly. Dale said that the affair will be held in the Santa Ana American Legion hall and that arrangements are being made to accommodate approximately 400 persons.

Sheppard will fly from Washington, D. C., to be here for the meeting.

Flood Control

Sheppard will discuss two of the most vital problems facing Orange county—the proposed flood control project and welfare.

General Chairman Dale said that because of the importance of the meeting, prominent citizens and officials of the county have been invited to attend, as have representatives of "Democratic organizations from Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

Members of all Democratic organizations in the county, chamber of commerce officials, Townsend club members and members of the board of supervisors also have been given special invitations to attend the meeting.

Elaborate plans are being made by officers of the Assembly of Democrats to make this the biggest meeting of its kind ever staged in Orange county. Besides the limited number of people which can be served at the banquet, those who plan to attend were urged to make reservations early at Assembly headquarters in Santa Ana, at 620 North Main street.

Following the Santa Ana meeting Congressman Sheppard will speak at the big Townsend Chautauqua, a three-day event, at Pasadena, then in San Bernardino and Riverside before returning to Washington, by airplane, on July 5.

Students To Pay Final Tribute To Accident Victim

Students at the Newport Union High school will pay their final tribute to Harold George Scovel, 18, in a memorial service to be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in Dixon chapel, Costa Mesa. Young Scovel received fatal injuries, Wednesday in an automobile accident in Costa Mesa.

Coroner Earl Abbey will conduct an inquest at 10 a. m. Monday and funeral services for the youth will be held at 9 a. m. Tuesday in Our Lady of Mt. Carmel church at Newport Beach. Interment will be in Holy Sepulcher cemetery.

In addition to his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Scovel of Costa Mesa, the youth is survived by his father, George Straub of Spokane, Wash.; two sisters, Mrs. Esther McDonnell and Mrs. Mae Wagner, both of Spokane, and a brother John Straub, of Seattle, Wash.

Born in Canada, Scovel was brought to Costa Mesa by his foster parents 14 years ago and had lived there since that time.

Police Seek Man Dressed As Woman

Santa Ana police were puzzled today over report of A. J. Boyd, 412 East Chestnut, to Sergeant N. C. Nelson yesterday that a man dressed as a woman held Boyd up at the point of a gun, on May 5, and robbed him of $4.

"I was on my way home when the man pointed a gun at me and took my money," said Boyd. "This week, the same person approached me, asked me for a match, then left without molesting me."

Police were investigating the case today, although they declared the "trail" probably would be "too cold" to obtain clues.

DIPLOMAS ARE PRESENTED TO BEACH SENIORS

Two-score members of the graduating class of Laguna Beach high school received their diplomas last night, at colorful commencement exercises held in the school auditorium. The hall was crowded with relatives and friends of the graduating seniors, and floral decorations were profuse and beautiful. The Rev. Robert M. Hogarth delivered the invocation, Barbara Hill welcomed the assembled guests, and the two speakers of the graduating class, Rosemary Walker and William Murray, chose as their respective topics, "Choice," and "Success."

The class gift was presented by George McKinley, Doctor V. P. Carroll, of the school board, presented the diplomas; and the address of introduction was delivered by School Principal Linton T. Simmons. A varied musical program was presented, including the rendition of "Rondo Capriccioso" as piano solo by Mary Walker; Arthur Sherman sang "Invictus"; the combined glee clubs sang "Home-coming," and the high school orchestra rendered "Pomp and Circumstance" and "Carnival." Jack Light, cellist, accompanied by Miss Jessie Riddle as pianist, was heard in the Jan Sibelius "Valse Triste."

Dance Follows

Following the commencement exercises, a dance was given for graduates and friends, under auspices of the Parent-Teacher association of the high school. In addition, an entertainment was staged in the decorated patio; the program included Spanish dances by Mildred Metson, Andre Merritt and Betty Goode, in a Spanish duet, and the Patsy Callahan troupe of tap, eccentric, and specialty dancers.

WORK PROGRESSES ON BEACH SCHOOL

Work of raising the old shop building at Huntington Beach high school is well under way, with work on the new building expected to get under way within a short time.

According to plans now in the state architect's office awaiting approval, the new shop building will be one-third larger than the old one damaged in the 1923 earthquake.

quake, and will cost approximately $75,000.

Designed by Allison and Allison, architects who had charge of the reconstruction of Santa Ana high school buildings following the earthquake, the shop building will follow the same general plan used for the shop building in Santa Ana, with one exception—a "saw tooth" roof lighting system will be utilized.

The building will be of steel construction with every precaution taken to make the structure earthquake proof. It is expected that it will be ready for occupancy when school is reopened in September.

CHICAGO NURSE ADMITS KIDNAP STORY HOAX

Novel Service Is Provided by Auto Club for Nomadic

Members of the Automobile Club of Southern California will receive an unusual service if they contemplate traveling in Europe this year, according to Robert Smith, who is in charge of foreign and domestic travel department. Through this department, members can secure what is known as American Travelers Hotel Letters which will save prospective tourists money on their hotel bills.

The Letters list more than 500 good hotels in 200 cities and resorts. The member selects any hotel and when leaving, the hotel manager will endorse, in a space provided, the amount spent. The traveler then returns the letter to the main office of the automobile club and receives a rebate.

Another special service extended by the club is that of "Auto-checks" which provide for one or more days' hotel accommodation, dinner, and breakfast at any hotel suitable for catering to motorists. This service insures the tourist that he will not be over-charged during his trip.

DOCK WORKERS TO BALLOT ON CIO QUESTION

PORTLAND, Ore., June 11. — (UP)—Irrked by interminable delays in the organization of the annual convention of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, the executive committee of the coast International Longshoremen's association today ordered an immediate referendum among the 20,000 dock workers on affiliation with the I.L.A.

Balked at his efforts to bring the CIO question before the whole convention because the credentials committee had not completed its work, Harry Bridges, president of the longshoremen act on it of their own accord.

The Federation of Wood Workers, representing 100,000 timber, lumber and mill workers of the northwest, started balloting on the CIO question today, with all ballots to be in and counted by July 10.

The work of the credentials committee has been slowed due to the necessity of assigning voting strength. A case in point is the fact the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, representing 6000 members, has only five delegates at the convention while the Inland Boatmen's union with a membership of only 2000 has 10. It is up to the credentials committee to apportion the voting strength of delegates in proportion to the strength of their unions.

Girl, 12, Held In Extortion Case

SALT LAKE CITY, June 11.—(UP)—Juvenile authorities today studied the case of a 12-year-old girl who attempted to extort $25 from a boy friend her own age. They said the girl, whose name was not revealed, wrote three threatening letters to the boy telling him "if you don't have $25 by Saturday you will be shot."

"Father work only six days a month on WPA and we haven't half enough to eat," the girl was quoted as saying. "I was going to use the money to run away with and get a job so there would be more for the others to eat."

The girl has 10 brothers and sisters.

Order Actress To Testify On Stocks

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—(UP)—Claire Windsor, star of the silent screen, said today she was under subpoena to appear before the federal securities and exchange commission in connection with a stock case in which she lost $16,800.

She said two men are being held in New York in connection with the case.

"A few days ago in New York they tried to serve a subpoena on me but I had a picture engagement so I dodged it," said the actress. "Really, I don't know must about the case, except that I must appear and give testimony. I had nothing to do with instituting the action."

McFADDEN GETS HIGH PRAISE IN "CALIFORNIA"

In a copyrighted article appearing in the June issue of California, tribute is paid to A. J. McFadden, of Santa Ana, as a businessman who always has time to take on another task, help someone in need of help or go fishing.

Written to call attention to McFadden's recent election as president of the California State Chamber of Commerce, the article told the story of a man who forsook a successful career as an attorney and created for himself a successful career as agriculturist and businessman.

He Does It!
election as president of the state chamber of commerce. It said, "Somebody—it sounds like one of the maxims of Poor Richard—once said: 'If you want to get something done, find a busy man to do it.'"

That phrase, the article pointed out typifies McFadden. In addition to heading the state chamber of commerce he is chairman of the California Agricultural Pro-Rate Commission, President of the Irvine Valencia Growers, Irvine Walnut Growers' Association and the South Orange County Per-simmon Growers' Association. In addition to these tasks, he is vice-president of the California Fruit Exchange.

Likes Fishing
In addition to these activities, McFadden operates 240 acres of farm land in Orange county, planted principally to oranges and lemons, with about 20 acres in persimmons. Besides operations he owns a walnut grove, range land in one of the national forests, and extensive lumber interests in Mexico.

He still finds time to go fishing. The article in California said, "When the going gets tough anywhere along the line, he gets out his rods and flies and goes fishing."

Goes to Harvard
McFadden is a native Californian, in fact he is a native son of Santa Ana, having been born here August 2, 1881, and, except for his six years of college and law school, has lived here ever since. He was graduated from the Santa Ana high school at 17 and entered Pomona college, having been graduated there in three years to enter the Harvard Law school where he took his LL.B. in 1904.

Returning to Santa Ana he practiced law until 1908 when illness forced him to retire from legal practice and enter the agricultural field. His success in that field is written in the annals of Orange county.

Harlow Found Work Outlet For Emotions After Three Marriages Had Failed Her

Editor's Note: Following is the fourth and final installment of the life of Jean Harlow as presented by the United Press.

By WELLAND GORDON
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—(UP)—Three marriages within six years, each a failure, had left Jean Harlow, at the age of 22 years, with her work in pictures as the main outlet for her emotions.

She had been divorced from Charles F. McGrew, Chicago broker, and from Hal Rosson, cameraman. She had lost Paul Bern, the man whom she said exerted "the greatest influence on my life," by suicide.

"What Is Next?"
The actress surveyed her past and said: "What will happen next, I don't know. My life has been so full of changes and unexpected happenings that I don't dare make too definite plans for the future. If I can only keep my self respect, honesty and my friends, I shall be thankful. No one can ask for more than that."

In the picture making season of 1933-34 Miss Harlow begged studio officials to allow her to return to the sets and as a result, production was started on "The Girl From Missouri."

In that picture she played opposite a screen newcomer, Francklynne Tamm, and was co-starred with Lionel Barrymore.

Life began to move swiftly once again for the former Kansas City school girl. Next came the picture "Reckless" and it brought her into close contact with a man who three years later stood at her deathbed. He was the debonair William Powell.

Airport Greeting
Time, and again the two, were seen together. Once at Del Mar a Pacific ocean resort, in August, 1934, friends said that she was to take her fourth husband. Later, when she returned to Hollywood from a vacation, Powell met her at the airport and greeted her with a fervent kiss. Reporters asked her if they were to be married.

"It is a little early to forecast that," she replied, but she did not deny that a romance was under way.

Miss Harlow began work on "China Seas". In that picture she scored, according to many critics, a highlight of her career.

A London drama editor wrote after her death that in "China Seas" Jean Harlow demonstrated she was equal in ability to any other player at the stage or screen.

Fond of Both
She was enthusiastic about her role, in which she worked with Clark Gable and Wallace Beery. She was extremely fond of both men. Of Beery she said: "He was a joking, laughing comrade with an inexhaustible fund of energy, always talking about his small adopted daughter."

"Riffraff" came next and it marked a definite change in Miss Harlow's career. She abandoned the "platinum blonde" hair and it ress," she explained. "When M. G. M. cast me as Hattie in 'Riffraff' I felt my platinum hair simply would not do for a girl of the waterfront, which I was to portray. So I came forth a 'brownette'. It was another gamble, but luck was with me."

"All a Joke"
Again William Powell strode into her professional career. They played together in "Libeled Lady." They stopped traffic in Santa Barbara, one day when they were discovered shopping for kitchen utensils.

Again the question of marriage was put to her, and again she parried. "It was all a joke," she said. In 1936 she went into court and was granted permission to her mother's maiden name, the one she had adopted for her film career, as her own legal title, so she became, in fact, Jean Harlow less long.

GIANT RAT CAUSES PANIC AT THEATER

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—(UP)—A giant rat that ran up a boy's trouser leg nearly caused a panic at a revival of Jean Harlow's "Hell's Angels" in a downtown theater last night.

Clutching at his leg, Joseph Eisenauer, 15, ran screaming up the aisle. He strangled the rat inside his trousers. His thigh was bitten severely.

The rat measured 15 1/2 inches long.

CLOCK STANDS AS LONGFELLOW ONCE SAW IT

BOSTON (UP)—The 130-year-old clock atop the African M. E. church, which inspired the poet Longfellow, will continue to strike the hour—thanks to Beacon Hill residents.

Several persons pooled funds to meet the upkeep of $15 a month after learning that the blue-faced timepiece was to be stopped permanently because of a lack of money.

Three weeks the clock is wound by Fireman Florence Moore. He uses a windlass, pulling the box weights up until they touch the top.

Such notable abolitionists as William Lloyd Garrison, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Frederick Douglass spoke from the church's pulpit.

It was the tower of this church as glimpsed from Harvard bridge that inspired Longfellow to pen the lines:

"I stood on the bridge at midnight
As the clocks were striking the hour
And the moon rose o'er the city
Behind the dark church tower."

CHORES IRK FIREMEN
CLEVELAND, (UP)—Firemen in suburban East Cleveland appealed to the City Commission to relieve them of such tasks as cleaning cuspidors, rolling municipal tennis courts and mopping floors. They objected to being called "mop-handlers" by passers-by.

amount of money pouring into the coffers of the finance ministry. If real purpose lies in another direction. Italy hopes by this ruse to keep out secondary foreign film and thus gives its infant industry a chance to flourish.

the United Press. "No one can change a masterpiece from an inferior position to compete in this field. We must then do the next best thing, and that is to eliminate the low-class foreign films from the Italian market and thus give our own industry a chance to get to the top."

Actually this increased tax will not burden the American film industry, as Hollywood firms will pay less than before the laws were devaluated.

The third factor is the influx of foreign stars to Hollywood, and here by invitation, others because the competition is too severe in their own countries. Several Italian-Americans have come to these shores. Francesca Braggiotti, John Lodge's wife, has been placed in the picture. She will be released shortly. She is being won over on her second film, Two Faces of a Woman, with Barrell, former Romy and Rado ballet dancer, with two who have been in the picture before about to go on before the camera in "Ductor Antonio."

It is rumored that Greta Lovest, star of the silent days, who is in Europe, will be engaged to Eventually foreign film stars engaged in Italy will do pictures in their own languages so as to appeal to the markets of their own countries. These same films will be dubbed in Italian for the local market.

The fourth factor, which Italians pin much hope on, is the currency restrictions. This measure prevents the firms from obtaining the major part of their returns realized from the sale of their films in Italy.

The only way out for them is present is to utilize their funds in making films in Italy. These firms have the alternative of sending over their own companies to make films or to hire Italian outfits. Italy is indifferent to the method selected. The main point is that the films be made in Italy.

Officials declare that Italy will produce about 150 films annually through the facility of the new studios. Whether these 150 films can give Italy the dominance sought in the film work remains to be seen.

Whole Nation Eyes "Rent Strike" Test

Here union men are told whether to pay their rent or not, as the Pontiac local of the United Auto Workers stages a "rent strike" which may be significant for every landlord and tenant in the country.

By NEA Service

PONTIAC, Mich., June 11—That the "rent strike" unfolding here is important as a "test tube" for a new weapon in the economic arena, is well shown by inquiries flooding in on the local committee of the United Auto Workers which is directing the strike.

Not only is a similar and larger movement being planned for Detroit about July 1, but inquiries have been received by the local committee from a half dozen other Michigan cities and from New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Indiana. Tenants and landlords in increasing numbers are realizing the possibilities in this newest field of union activity.

The "strike" which began June 1 was the brain-child of a rent committee of Local 159, U. A. W. A. The plan was that, beginning with that day, all members were to withhold payment of their rent whether dissatisfied or not. Then an effort would be made to establish a scale of rents based on a dollar a month on each $1000 of assessed valuation.

Wilber Jennings, tenant

Mrs. Ada A. Cook, landlord

Already a jury pretty evenly divided between tenants and property owners has heard one case and decided it in favor of the landlord, Mrs. Ada A. Cook. Her tenant, Wilber Jennings, an auto worker, rented a four-room suite of a nine-unit building in which Mrs. Cook, the landlord, also lives. He was paying on a weekly basis $11 a week, which Mrs. Cook raised to $12.50 last December. Jennings refused to pay more than $11, and Mrs. Cook allowed him to continue at that rate until May 28, when she sued to regain possession of her apartment. The court gave Jennings five days to get out.

It is not yet possible to determine the effectiveness of the strike. No one knows just how many union members had rent due on June 1, and refusal will not be definitely clear until around June 10.

The sign, "Pontiac Tenants' Union Headquarters, U. A. W. A. Local 159," hangs over the regular union headquarters. Efforts are being made to get other unions to join the movement.

Picnics and Reunions

All former West Virginians are invited to the annual picnic reunion to be held all day, Saturday, June 19 in Sycamore Grove Park. The officers of the state society urge all from that state to attend and tourists will be especially welcomed.

The McGuffey Club reunion will be held at the same place and date and all who ever studied any of the McGuffey school books are invited.

HOLLYWOOD FILM SHOP

By JOHN "SKY" DUNLAP

HOLLYWOOD, June 11. — (UP) After her thrill-filled experiences in War-torn Spain, pretty Rosita Diaz has come to Hollywood for a new series of pictures, this time under the roof of Cantabria films.

Miss Diaz, the first lady of Spanish films, received her most exciting press notices several months ago when she was reported executed as a spy in Spain. When she finally turned up alive, she was the target of a dozen film and studio offers. Co-producers Jaime Del Amo and Josef Berne of Cantabria outwitted the American, British and Latin picture companies and located her with a lucrative cable in Segovia and her trip to Hollywood resulted.

Miss Diaz is familiar with Southern California from her first trip here in 1933-34, when she appeared in Spanish versions for Fox films. Her 23 years belle her varied experience on the stage and screen. She toured Spain and the Latin American countries in repertoire and played opposite Maurice Chevalier in Paramount's foreign pictures in Paris.

One of the highlights of her career came in 1934 when she won the award of artistic merit at the annual exposition in Venice for her great performances in Spanish films.

The original plan was to use her in another series of Spanish talkies but when her producers saw her work in her last Spanish-made film, in which she played with Antonio Moreno, they felt they had another foreign importation with tremendous box-office potentialities in the American and English markets.

Cantabria, releasing through a major company, will make six features and six musical shorts with Miss Diaz, the first feature being titled "El Camino de Hollywood." The story is about extras in Hollywood, a popular subject everywhere.

Petite, 5 feet, 1 inch, a "brown-ette" and pretty, Miss Diaz numbers among her close friends such movie celebrities as Dolores Del Rio, Antonio Moreno, Rosita Moreno, Ramon Romero and other foreign players.

CALLING all DOGS

By Albert Payson Terhune

DID YOU KNOW . . . ?

Did you know that your dog's digestive tract has practically no means for digesting sweets? Think of that when you are tempted to give him candy and sweets? Think of that when you are tempted to give him candy and lump sugar and cake. Ice cream in moderation is good for him, in spite of its sweetness. I don't know why.

Did you know there are eighteen references to dogs in the Bible, and that seventeen of them are any-thing but complimentary?

Did you know that dogs used to be put to death, almost always, by hanging? "This in Great Britain and in other parts of Europe. The custom persisted, to a whole lot extent, in some places until less than a century ago. Hence, it is said, arose the expression, "to die like a dog."

Did you know that for more than a thousand years dogs were the official scavengers of Constantinople, as well as of other cities of the Near East? Each gang of dogs pre-empted some quarter of the city for itself, and killed or drove away all dogs from other districts which ventured into its self-chosen territory. A few decades ago, the Turkish government rounded up the scavenger dogs and dumped them onto an island a few miles off shore. There, I have read, thousands of them starved to death.

For some time after the fork was first introduced into England in 1601, napkins were folded into intricate designs and used for display only.

Comedies Head Walker's Bill

How a snappy, self-assured sergeant in the army camp of the early 1917 days, dares to wager with his mates that he will eat breakfast with the general, whom he's never seen, and how he wins, forms the farcical background for the screen story, "23 1/2 Hours Leave," showing today and tomorrow at Walker's.

Robert Taylor and the late Jean Harlow are co-starred in the comedy-drama, "Personal Property," second feature. An orchestra feature with Ina Hutton's "Melodians," and news are added. "Personal Property," by M-G-M was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, who is known as the man "who never fails." He made "Rose Marie," "San Francisco," and "After the Thin Man."

PLOW TO GUARD MOISTURE USED

MINNEAPOLIS, (UP)—A new type of farm plow, designed to dam up moisture and preserve it against summer drought in the dry Northwest, has been devised. The machine is known as a five-row damming lister.

Development of equipment to meet the requirements of the parched plains centers largely about the plans and practices of C. T. Peacock of Arriba, Colo., an alert, progressive wheat farmer whose outstanding success in farming the semi-arid regions has brought him widespread recognition.

He explained that during the last seven or eight years he has used equipment of his own design and construction and has been successful in producing wheat (winter wheat) crops in the drier years when the farming operations of other farmers in the same area, using ordinary farming practices, resulted in total failure.

Improved Method Described
The method of summer fallowing employed by Peacock is described as "controlled summer-fallow" in that it is summer-fallowing with several definite, well-planned objects in mind.

"Early tillage," he said, "plays an important part. The proper method of tillage, the control and uniform distribution of moisture, control of wind erosion, and the eradication of moisture-stealing weeds are all highly important."

"Finally, the clod mulch must be retained throughout the fallow season."

Peacock begins working his fallow fields just as early as possible, throwing up dams to retain early spring moisture, reworking his fields only when necessary to destroy weed and volunteer growth.

Narrow Trenches Plowed
The new damming lister is equipped with a series of five shovels, or chisels, which open up narrow trenches from 6 to 10 or 12 inches deep spaced 20 inches apart.

These trenches place the subsoil in ideal condition to take in the moisture rapidly and thereby prevent runoff. The moisture is absorbed in the deeper subsoils.

Each of the five damming attachments on the plow is mounted securely at the rear of the lister and is made up of three double blades, mounted on a revolving spider. These blades follow the trenches made by the shovels, heaping up the soil to form a mound or dam as the lister moves forward.

When the dam reaches the height determined by previous setting, the float rises, tripping the spider, which revolves to put the next pair of blades to work forming the next dam.

In this manner, a dam is placed across the furrow to pocket the moisture from heavy rains, preventing runoff at the surface.

The inorganic theory of the creation of petroleum is that it was formed in the earth by chemical reactions due to volcanic disturbances.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with aching and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lameness, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Townsend Topics

By W. F. Rockwell

(Editor's Note: The comment and opinions of W. F. Rockwell, appearing in this column are not necessarily those of The Register.)

The following is copied from the editorial page of the June 9 issue of the Register: "Sales Tax or Inflation." Chapin Hall in his column in the Los Angeles Times, says that it is becoming to be a general feeling in Congress that we will have to have a sales tax or inflation. With only 1.39 per cent of the people paying direct taxes to the Federal Government, there is no question that we cannot balance the budget until we broaden the tax base, till we make more people pay direct tax.

"With our public educators teaching the pupils that education and government expenses are free, they will insist on the government doing more and more for people. Our educational leaders are so sophisticated that they do not understand that sales taxes are passed back to the customer. Undoubtedly, it is true that we will have to have a broad tax base or have inflation."

"It should not be a sales tax, as sales tax does not tax many things that the rich use and taxes many things twice and does not tax in proportion as the individual consumer costs the government. We should have a wider tax base, based on what the individual costs the government and not as a direct sales tax because of the unfairness of the direct sales tax."

"It should be a graduated tax on consumption, including all items and taxing nothing twice, so that everybody knows that the government from it and that he is contributing his just share. That is the only way we will ever balance the budget."

Is not the foregoing a call for the Townsend Plan which will "broaden the tax base"? The transactions tax is not a sales tax. It is a tax of two cents on each dollar in every transaction of every kind and character, paid by the seller, not the buyer, and is sent monthly to Washington to be used only for the payment of annuities due all qualified annuitants who receive not to exceed $200 per month each. There is no cost to the government or to anyone else, as all expenses of administering the distribution are deducted from the total yield of the tax before distribution of the balance, pro rata, begins. It not only "makes more people pay direct tax," but makes everybody pay, and in exactly the same proportion, thus marking it the fairest system, giving no one, rich or poor, any advantage over anyone else. Nothing is taxed twice. Whether the tax is "passed back to the customer" or not, depends on competition which "is the life of trade." However, business men will be glad to pay the two per cent without passing it back to the customer. They would willingly pay five per cent, or even 10 per cent or more to get ne business. The forced circulation of money caused by the forced spending would bring a continuous flow of new business that would not come without the Townsend plan. All business will thus be energized and healthy. Then "everybody will know that the government is his; that he reaps benefits from it and that he is contributing his just share."

GUAM COLONY IN WASHINGTON HOLDS RE UNION

By HARRY W. FRANTZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON—(UP)—Pleasant Guam—known to the Spaniards as the "Island of Lateen Sails"—was responsible for a social event here, perhaps the first time in its 39 peaceful years under the American flag.

About 60 Americans and several of the native people of the island—known as Chamorros—assembled for a garden party at a Maryland country inn to renew memories and associations of former residence in the tiny western Pacific isle, 1500 miles east of the Philippines.

Host of the party was Francisco Leon Guerrero, of the Guam House of Assembly, and guest of honor was B. J. Bordaño, chairman of the House of Council in the Guam Congress. These officials came here as a delegation to seek American citizenship for the 25,000 natives of the island. The latter now are "men without a country," in the sense that they are neither aliens nor citizens of the United States, and are not eligible for naturalization.

Governed By Navy
The island since its cession to the United States by Spain in 1898 has been under naval rule, due to the fact that the chief official interest there has been in the naval station. The governor is a naval officer, the administrative jurisdiction at Washington rests in the Navy Department. A local "Congress" is advisory to the governor.

Under these circumstances a considerable number of naval officers here have a personal acquaintance with Guam; likewise former officers on trans-Pacific army transports. The lawn party here, however, was the first non-service gathering recalled in insular circles.

The party, which avoided any political aspect, was held in the Maryland countryside; according to the host, because of the similarity to Guam suggested by the green hills and the hilly gardens.

On Pacific Airline
Guam has never been on a regular commercial steamer line, and until the establishment of trans-Pacific service by the Pan-American clippers was practically terra incognita to American tourists. The party revealed that air tourists who have called at Guam represent a growing community here.

Prominent among Washingtonians who have visited Guam by the air route are Sen. Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont and Sen. William G. McAdoo of California. The former sponsored a bill for Guam citizenship.

The only "native daughter" of Guam now resident here is Mrs. Marquita Hoover, wife of a naval officer, who came here about eight months ago. She was the "Princess of Agaña" at the last Guam Fair.

Former school teachers, accountants, students, and retired service personnel made up the rest of the Washington "Guam colony."

MARRIAGE FEES AID NEEDY
NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y., (UP)—When the marriage rate in North Tonawanda falls off, the city's needy children suffer. Every time Mayor John E. Wallace performs a wedding ceremony in his City Hall office, he turns the money paid by the newlyweds into a fund to purchase shoes for needy children.

Boggs will be given a sanity trial, started Monday. If he is sane he must die in California's lethal gas chamber. A jury of 11 men and a woman found him guilty of first degree murder last night and failed to recommend mercy. The extreme penalty is mandatory in such cases. But because Boggs made two pleas of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity, he must get another hearing before he is condemned. Last night was the first time the death penalty was invoked in this county since 1894.

The jury was out an hour and a half. Debating its verdict in the slaying of Mrs. Sally Boggs, 37, which occurred on April 17 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Harris, where Mrs. Boggs and Danny were spending the night.

"CALF ORPHANAGE" URGED
DULUTH, Minn., (UP)—A plan for a "calf orphanage" is being pushed among dairy herdsman in the Arrowhead region of Minnesota as a means of improving dairy herds. Under the plan calves from the better cows of a herd would be farmed out to the orphanage at a nominal cost to the later brought back for use in the herd.

Beauty Reigns at Naval Academy

Beauty has its day at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. with Janet Cunneen of Washington, D. C., 1937 Color Girl, presenting the colors to Company Commander H. B. ROVING SOLDIER TRIES COLLEGE

KENT, O.—(UP)—Howard Ercanbrack, soldier of fortune, has come to rest in the studios of Kent State University, but not until after many years of unrest.

When he was only 15, Ercanbrack left his father's Texas farm and journeyed to Los Angeles, where he enlisted in the navy. Naval officers soon discovered he was under age and released him from duty with the Asiatic fleet.

Ercanbrack walked across the street from the recruiting station where he had first signed up and joined the army. He was stationed at Fort McDowell for a year before his age again was discovered.

The year 1925 found Ercanbrack in China Wantow, a coaling station on the outskirts of Northern China, after a stowaway passage on a Swedish tramp steamer. Rumors of big pay for Americans connected with the government troops there, led him to enlist in the 81st Division of the Chinese Army.

DENVER TO BE HOST TO ELKS

DENVER—(UP)—Denver will be the host city this summer to the 73rd national Elks convention, expected to be one of the largest fraternal meets ever held.

More than 40,000 members and their families, representing the 1600 Elks lodges in the United States and insular possessions, are expected for the week-long gathering which opens July 11.

Final arrangements for the big national reunion were completed at a conference here attended by David Sholtz, grand exalted ruler of the Elks and former governor of Florida. He predicted the convention to be one of the largest and most colorful in the history of the organization.

Principal features of the convention include a gigantic parade, the national Elks golf tournament for the $2000 John J. Doyle perpetual trophy; a trap and skeet shoot, and national contests for drum and bugle corps, glee clubs, bands and drill teams.

July 16 has been set aside for a pilgrimage to the Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun on Cheyenne Mountain, near Colorado Springs. The shrine was erected by Spencer Penrose, Colorado capitalist, in memory of Rogers, an Elk of New York Lodge No. 1.

ACTORS' GROUP WILL PRESENT 11 SHAW PLAYS

MOYLAN-ROSE VALLEY, Pa. (UP)—Jasper Deeter's famed Hedgerow Theater repertory company will open its fourth annual festival of plays by George Bernard Shaw on July 19.

A chronological cycle, beginning with "Arms and the Man," which the celebrated Irish playwright wrote in 1894, and including 10 full-length works and a shorter one, will be presented four times during the four weeks of the only annual festival in the world devoted entirely to the plays of a living writer.

The opening of a new play on Shaw's 81st birthday, July 26, will be the highlight of the festival. "Too Good To Be True," one of his most recent works, has been chosen by the company. It will become the 12th play in Hedgerow's repertory.

the small theater, a converted mill, owned by the company here in Moylan-Rose Valley, 13 miles south of Philadelphia. Hedgerow is a co-operative enterprise operated by 25 actors.

Deeter, who is director of the company, has trained more than 600 players here, including Ann Harding and Libby Holman.

"We've given nearly 2000 performances here and on the road during the past 13 years, and by the time this year's festival is over, we will have performed our Shaw plays more than 450 times," he said.

Shaw Makes Concessions
Shaw accepts the lowest royalties among the 80 playwrights whose works are included in the Hedgerow repertory, out of consideration of the limited seating capacity of the theater. Hedgerow, the Theater Guild and Katherine Cornell's company are the only three permitted to tour Shaw's plays in the United States.

The Shawian works included in the festival cover four decades of his career, and will number the following plays: "Candida," "You Never Can Tell," "The Devil's Disciple," "Getting Married," "Misalliance," "Androcles and the Lion," "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets," "Heartbreak House," and "Saint Joan."

Shaw was quoted in an interview last fall as expressing great interest in the repertory system at Hedgerow and at Malvern, England, saying that they were "what keeps the theater alive."

After Arrest of 28 Steel Pickets

Police arrested 28 men and forced the picket line back a block at the South Chicago plant of the Republic Steel Corp., before the crowd, shown above around the plant's gate, quieted. The walk-out was a part of the strike of 89,500 steel workers, attributed to the refusal of three companies to sign C. I. O. bargaining contracts.

DOCTORS TOLD OF STUDY ON CONFINEMENT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 11 (UP)—Hurry to a physician when you swallow a nickel or a dime or your false teeth, and the chances are that you won't suffer. But permit a foreign object to remain inside your body, and take the consequences—which will probably be serious.

Canal Explored
Col. Royal Reynolds of the U. S. army medical corps explored the alimentary canal with members of the American Medical Association today and warned of the fate that awaits the man who thinks he can swallow a whistle or an overcoat button and get away with it.

Dr. Raymond A. Vonderlehr, head of the division of venereal disease of the U. S. public health service, told the section on urology that 493,000 persons were under observation and treatment for gonorrhea at all times in the United States, "and there is no evidence that the disease is declining."

Drs. John E. Dees, Henry C. Harrill and John A. C. Colston, of Baltimore, said that in 41 cases, with only 10 days' treatment, they had achieved "striking results" through the use of sulfanilamide, a new drug recently used successfully in the treatment of streptococcus infections. The physicians said that further studies would be necessary to determine proper dosage, the reasons certain cases do not respond and the possibility of reactions.

Tell Study Results
Drs. Louis B. LaPlace and J. T. Nicholson, of Philadelphia, reported to the section on the practice of medicine the results of a study of the effects of confinement in bed upon elderly persons whose original illnesses were not serious.

They chose 34 patients in hospitals for broken hips and spinal operations, but whose general health was relatively good. Seventeen of the group died. Seven had illnesses that had no special relation to their confinement in bed, but in the other 10 it seemed obvious to the physicians that final illnesses and deaths were precipitated by staying in bed several weeks.

Circulation Slowed
Studies of the blood pressure and circulation, they said, showed that the prolonged inactivity of staying in bed slowed the circulation, which is naturally impeded by the hardening of the blood vessels in old age. This insufficient circulation causes the tissues to degenerate, with formation of ulcers. The body absorbs poison from these and toxemia develops, relation to their confinement in bed, was said.

Canada Forms First G-Man Organization

MONTREAL (UP)—The first Canadian investigation and law-enforcement agency patterned after the United States "G-Men" is being formed here.

It is a squad of "special operators" who will work under the jurisdiction of the province's attorney general's department, in co-operation with, but independent of, the provincial police force.

The squad will be composed of experts in different fields of police work. Its main function will be to investigate reported racketeers. The operatives also will cooperate with the provincial police in vice and gambling raids, investigate labor disputes and troubles, collect "independent" evidence in criminal trials, and obtain special information for use in drives on illegal businesses.

Each of the special operators will be put in charge of a certain field of investigation, for which his previous training best fits him. One man will have charge of all labor investigations, another business racketeers. Others will be held for special investigation into complaints which reach the department.

Authorities believe that the work of special operators will result in better prepared criminal cases being brought before the courts.

ARGENTINE OIL OUTPUT UP
BUENOS AIRES, (UP)—The board of the state oil fields issued a statement announcing that the output of crude oil had experienced a new increase during the first three months of the current year. During 1936 there was an increase of 20.8 per cent over 1935.

Leaves that jump about as if animated are grown by the pepper tree.

HAWAII PLANS FOOD RESERVES

HONOLULU (UP)—Food is as important as ammunition to make this part of America self-sufficient in event of a siege by an enemy fleet, is the opinion of Major-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, U. S. Army, and organizer of a new branch of the army known as the service command.

Officers assigned to this command are detailed to each of the eight islands of the Hawaiian group to study food production and consumption. At the completion of these preliminary studies concrete plans for emergency farming will be formed.

Aiding the army in this branch of the service is the federal department of agriculture's experiment station. These tests are carried on in developing crops that can be planted without delay to provide an emergency supply of staple vegetables and fruits if the chief source of foodstuffs—the United States—is cut off by an enemy blockade.

Under normal conditions Hawaii has less than two months supply of foodstuffs on hand. Under the planned system of emergency farming specially-produced crops would augment this reserve within a few months of the time they were planted.

Proof of the islands' dependence on other parts of the United States for the greater portion of its food is evidenced by the department of commerce reports showing that during the past fiscal year of 1936 the territory found it necessary to purchase for its civilian population alone, which numbers nearly 369,000 persons, 16,896,815 pounds of potatoes; 1,943,212 pounds of dried beans; 5,552,400 pounds of onions; 1,232,775 pounds of baked beans; $2,000,000 worth of fresh fruits; $3,000,000 worth of fresh and prepared meats; $734,297 worth of fish, and $1,623,938 worth of eggs.

In addition to the civilian population, army and navy forces stationed on the islands number approximately 15,500.

BEETLE HISTORY ISSUED

LOND. N (UP)—A short biography of the flea beetle, with helpful hints on how to combat the ravages of the insect to young turnips and other plants, has been issued by the ministry of agriculture.

SHRUBS TAKE HUMAN SHAPE

ATLANTA, Ga., (UP)—D. A. Pittman, who grows shrubbery in the shapes of men, women and beasts complained today because a hit-run driver broke Mrs. Noah's back, an elephant turned into the Democratic donkey and President Roosevelt's likeness has changed.

Pittman started his garden 12 years ago. Since then automobile accidents, storms, moths, freezing weather, insects, disease and even malnutrition have maimed and crippled his silent people and the animals.

When he started the garden he planned to reproduce Noah's ark, with the animals coming out two by two. His double garage and coal shed were quickly converted into a realistic ark, and he molded, twisted and trimmed bushes of privet hedge to grow in the shapes of animals.

Fashioned New Types
But as time went on Pittman found that some of the animals died or were killed in accidents, while others had their species changed. And he admits he became so interested he began to fashion things that Noah never heard of.

The most disastrous accident happened to Mrs. Noah, who guarded the door to the garage. A hit-and-run driver struck her and broke her back in two. Pittman suspects that his son, Alan, was the driver.

However, Pittman ran a brace down her spine and in spite of looking as though she suffered from colic, Mrs. Noah thrived.

When the ark was first built, two elephants stood side by side. One of them did not grow properly, and its front legs seemed stunted. Pittman changed it to a Democratic donkey, and still the forelegs refused to grow properly.

Pittman was not worried. He stood it upright on its hind legs and during the Presidential campaign carved a big set of teeth out of tin and set them in the donkey's mouth in a shape of a horse laugh.

Sandstone To Blame
When he began wondering why the front legs wouldn't grow he found a large sandstone which had caused malnutrition.

Other surprising changes have taken place in his garden. The dove that brought the olive leaf to the ark turned into an eagle.

and Pittman's son printed a little blue label, "NRA," and stuck it on the shrub.

But the man standing in the front yard, who has attracted the attention of motorists for years, has changed a lot of times. He is the privet-hedge figure of President Roosevelt. By careful trimming he has been made to bear a slight resemblance to the President.

But lately the shoulders have widened, the stomach has disappeared and the chin has grown longer.

WOMAN TO TESTIFY IN BRIBERY CASE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—(UP)—Mrs. Alma D. Harris was under subpoena today to testify before the grand jury at Sacramento concerning asserted bribery charges in connection with the Arroyo Seco road bill before the recently adjourned session of the state legislature.

She accepted the subpoena without comment but her husband, Manly S. Harris, said she had no connection with the alleged bribery attempts.

She was named by Assemblyman C. C. Cottrell, of San Jose, as the woman who allegedly attempted to persuade him to vote in favor of the bill, which had been advocated by Mrs. Sherman Hoyt, of Pasadena.

Orange County Food Market To Celebrate Anniversary

Orange County Food Market, 1008 South Main street, one of the Alpha Beta markets, will celebrate its fifth anniversary Saturday and Monday. A. "Will" Gerrard, secretary and treasurer of Alpha Beta stores, said today that this anniversary will be one of the outstanding events in the market's existence. Special bargains have been arranged in all departments of the market to observe the event.

For several days truckloads of the market in anticipation of the event.

In addition to giving special bargains in all departments of the market the management has arranged for several entertainment features. Included in the program will be "Mighty", the midge. "Mighty" is 37 years old and measures 37 inches in height. For four years he was leading clown with the Al G. Barnes circus.

Other acts will include "Trixie", the trained dog and the three Kyle Clowns. This trio was featured in the Bing Crosby picture, "Pennies from Heaven."

Gerrard said that carrier pigeons also will be turned loose with "pigeongrams" written by customers.

President Roosevelt expressed hope today that congress would pass the ever-normal granary agriculture bill at this session.

The broad farm aid bill, sponsored by agricultural organizations, had not been on the list of preferred administration legislation previously announced by both senate and house leaders.

Mr. Roosevelt's support of the farm bill was announced at a press conference held as he was clearing his desk preparatory to a weekend cruise on the Potomac river.

Mary Pickford and Charles (Buddy) Rogers admitted today that their wedding day was approaching.

They hinted that the ceremony would be soon after Rogers finishes work on a picture now in production. That would be about the last of this month. It was understood that the wedding would be in Hollywood and that Rogers' father, Judge B. H. Rogers, the "marrying parson" of Olathe, Kan., would come here to officiate.

Mine Strike In Idaho Is Settled

BOISE, Idaho, June 11.—(UP)—Gov. Barzilla Clark today expressed gratification that the strike of more than 750 miners at the Morning and Page mines in Millan and Kellogg has been settled without violence. The governor said it was an example of what arbitration could accomplish.

Settlement of the strike was accomplished largely through the efforts of Governor Clark, J. L. Balderston, commissioner of law enforcement, and representatives of both employers and workers.

Signing of a pact which allows complete recognition of the International Union of Mine, Smelter and Mill workers and the eight hour, portal-to-portal shift, signified end of the dispute.

COBRA BITE DEFIES WHISKY

SINGAPORE, (UP)—Whisky is no antidote against snakebite, at least as far as the cobra is concerned. That was the warning to young men about to leave for the "steamy, snake-infested jungles" of the tropics given by M. F. W. Tweedie, Assistant Curator of the Raffles Museum here.

REICH ATTAINS NEW PINNACLE AS AIR POWER

BY WALTER WILKE
United Press Staff Correspondent

BERLIN.—(UP)—When Hermann Goering, World War ace, rode to authority with the Nazi party in 1933, he had grandiose ideas for Germany's air forces. Today Goering's early program is achieved, and further plans for the future are well on the way to realization.

Three years ago Goering let the German people and the world know that huge sums were being spent for aviation by frankly warning that more money would be needed later on.

Colonel-General Goering, Premier of Prussia and Reichminister for Aviation, and his assistants knew what they wanted, and they set about to get it. They laid out new airports. They constructed planes. They stationed sections of the military fleet at strategic points throughout the country. They trained fliers. They encouraged commercial aviation. They interested the youth in flying. They tried to make the nation air-conscious.

Hitler's Order Carried Out
Adolf Hitler once said, "Germany must become a nation of fliers." Goering has made carrying out that order his personal task.

Agriculture has felt the pinch of military necessity in Goering's program. Crop-producing fields have been transformed into landing fields. Official statistics show that in 1935 German agriculture provided 447,000 hectares of land for airfields and barracks. In 1935, Goering demanded an additional 80,000 hectares for similar purposes.

One of the greatest problems facing Goering was the training of fliers. This is how he solved it: Each of the early instructors, of which there were few, took five students in charge. After each student had completed 100 hours in the air, he in turn became an instructor for ground training, with five more students under his supervision.

Gliding Sport Aided
Amateur gliding schools and clubs formed the nucleus for the new crops of fliers. As early as 1932 Germans took up gliding as sport, organizing the training on their own initiative and paying their own expenses. Goering encouraged this sport to the extent of taking over the expenses and providing expert instructors.

Incidentally, German gliders have made considerable progress. In 1932 gliders were staying in the air for a maximum of 12 minutes, and covering only several hundred yards distance. Today, the sustained flight record is 36 hours, 35 minutes, and the distance is 318 miles.

Training Begun Early
Training the nation to air-mindedness begins in the schools. Youngsters are building airplane models at the age of 12. Those who show particular interest and aptitude are sent to gliding schools over week ends. Thousands of youths already have received gliding licenses.

While rebuilding the military air fleet, Goering also has devoted considerable attention to commercial flying. Long distance flights have been attempted to test new types.

A majority of the 56 airports of the Luftwaffe, Germany's only commercial line, have been rebuilt, enlarged and modernized. That the commercial planes, the fields and other equipment of the Lufthansa could quickly be turned to military status in an emergency is a fact which no one attempts to disguise.

LOBSTER FISHERMAN, 82
CROWLEY'S ISLAND, Me., (UP)—Joseph Y. Crowley, 82, is believed to be the oldest Maine Coast lobster fisherman. Crowley has been hauling lobster traps for more than 50 years. He makes five rounds of his 80 traps daily and hauls in about 35 pounds.

The United States is the world leader in marble production, producing 350,000,000 marbles annually.

PRESIDENT URGES FARM BILL SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(UP)—President Roosevelt expressed hope today that congress would pass the ever-normal granary agriculture bill at this session.

The broad farm aid bill, sponsored by agricultural organizations, had not been on the list of preferred administration legislation previously announced by both senate and house leaders.

Mr. Roosevelt's support of the farm bill was announced at a press conference held as he was clearing his desk preparatory to a weekend cruise on the Potomac river.

Mine Strike In Idaho Is Settled

BOISE, Idaho, June 11.—(UP)—Gov. Barzilla Clark today expressed gratification that the strike of more than 750 miners at the Morning and Page mines in Millan and Kellogg has been settled without violence. The governor said it was an example of what arbitration could accomplish.

Settlement of the strike was accomplished largely through the efforts of Governor Clark, J. L. Balderston, commissioner of law enforcement, and representatives of both employers and workers.

Signing of a pact which allows complete recognition of the International Union of Mine, Smelter and Mill workers and the eight hour, portal-to-portal shift, signified end of the dispute.

4 out of every 5 miles you drive are Stop and Go

In the crowded city and on the open road, too, you can't GO far these days without STOPPING!

The average motorist makes 30 stops every single day!

That's what runs up your daily driving costs. One traffic stop can waste enough gasoline to take your car a third of a mile!

Shell engineers, recognizing the waste of stop and go driving, developed a way to "balance" gasoline.

By completely rearranging its chemical structure, this unique balancing process does to gasoline just what cooking does to some foods—makes it "digestible."

Starting, shifting, accelerating—always—your engine gets full benefit from Super-Shell's high energy content.

And you get the savings!

"Motor-digestible" is the best way to describe Super-Shell.

The next time you need gasoline, try Super-Shell. There is a Shell dealer in your neighborhood.

SERVICE TAXED FOR COLORADO DOLE PAYMENT

By WILLIAM F. DANENBARGER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

DENVER — (UP)—Colorado doctors, lawyers and beauty operators, now collecting for the state's 2 per cent tax on their services, will submit their first returns to the treasury on June 15.

Approximately $125,000 will be turned over to the treasury for the first half-month's collections under Colorado's new 2 per cent service tax, a companion measure to the 2 per cent sales tax that has been in effect two years.

The service tax law enacted when the $45-a-month old age pension amendment earmarked $5 per cent of sales and liquor tax receipts for pensions, became effective May 14 upon the signature of Gov. Teller Ammons.

Funds Kept Separate
Despite similarity in the two laws, revenues from the taxes will be used for separate purposes. Eighty-five per cent of the sales tax receipts must go for old age pensions. All of the service tax money will go into the general revenue fund to be spent on direct relief.

The distinction makes it imperative for persons and businesses selling both merchandise and services to keep a separate but accurate set of books.

Doctors, for instance, must charge the service tax, but must include a sales tax for any bandages, medicines or other materials they use.

Rent, transportation, wages, advertising and interstate commerce are specifically exempt from the service tax, estimated to yield $3,000,000 a year.

Brokers Pay on 20 Pct.
Brokers, who must pay the tax, have reached an agreement with Homer F. Bedford, state treasurer, whereby they will pay the tax on 20 per cent of their business. The remaining 80 per cent will be classed as interstate business.

Coloradoans, accustomed to paying tax tokens for their food, clothing and other retail purchases, have shown resentment against the impact on picture shows, haircuts, shoe shines, parking lots, repairs, and medical and legal fees.

Hearings to inform the public of the operation of the new tax were turned into "wise cracking and abusive" meetings, Bedford said.

The tax is being administered by the sales tax department under directorship of the state treasurer. The same round, metal tokens are used for both taxes. The 100-man sales tax department is being doubled, with employees chosen from 3500 persons who applied for the jobs.

New Road Map Guides Driver Mile By Mile

MINNEAPOLIS — (UP)—The inventive genius of Harley G. Webster, Minneapolis artist and cartoonist, may prove the salvation of the harassed motorist who cracks an elbow everytime he opens his "neatly folded" road map.

Webster has worked out a device which is designed to automatically move a trip map as the motorist drives along.

No larger than the average folding camera, the device, which is electrically operated from the car battery, is placed next to the rear vision mirror where it can be seen by the motorist and passengers. A miniature motor moves the map in proportion to the average rate of driving speed of the car.

A miniature lamp throws light on the moving map to enable the motorist to see it clearly both night and day. Webster said the trip road map used will cover routes from 100 to 700 miles and may be easily changed.

Compromise On The Supreme Court?

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Now that the battle over reforming the supreme court has entered its second stage, it's just as well to take our bearings and see what it's all about.

The only issue is whether Franklin Roosevelt shall be allowed to name a sufficient number of liberal judges to protect the New Deal in the days of political reaction as well as help put it across now.

As things stand, by the law of averages, enough of the big money and Republican judges should survive until 1940 to enable the next President to name a majority of the supreme court and thus tie up America for another generation. In the meantime, the present court can continue to sabotage the New Deal—in the case of NRA, AAA and its recent power decisions—so that its benefits being diluted or deferred, its political popularity can be undermined.

That is the meaning of this ghastly eight-year race between the grim reaper and the election returns. Van Devanter is gone, but Hughes, Butler, Sutherland, McReynolds and Roberts remain to hold the fort for the gentlemen who are so ingenious in the matter of income taxes, and neither Brandeis, Cardozo nor Stone will stay on the bench forever.

The President has decided to fight it out on this line if it takes till 1940. He has also decided that the best way to capture and hold popular support is to stick to his guns and keep his word. With a growing sense of horror, the conservatives have come to realize that he meant what he said in his "We have just begun to fight!" speech at Madison Square Garden in the closing days of his 1936 campaign. The policies urged in that speech cannot be attained or protected without a decisive New Deal majority on the supreme court. Perhaps it is this, plus the income-tax revelations, which accounts for the New York Herald-Tribune's veiled threat of Fascist insurrection and the general anger of the Tory commentators.

The Tories won the opening round of the supreme court fight. The administration take-off was badly bungled and the Roosevelt reform bill was given the works in the senate judiciary committee. The New Dealers have nothing but admiration for the political skill of Senator Burke of Nebraska, who led the battle against the court bill. He played Senator Ashurst of Arizona, wise-cracking chairman of the committee, like an accordion, until the three wobbling senators from the "Rotten Boroughs" of the sheep and mining states made their peculiar switch to the side of Wall Street.

Now the court has adjourned and no more aid from the bench can be expected by the Tore army. From now on, it is a political pitched battle which can last, if necessary, up to the elections of 1938.

There will be no Roosevelt compromise on the main issue. He must continue to try to cut off the head of our judicial monarchy, according to an ancient Anglo-Saxon precedent. He is determined to air-condition our courts for the benefit of his popular program of social and economic reform: cheap power, drought-and-flood control, cheap housing, farm tenancy legislation, hour-and-wage laws for labor, the "ever-normal granary," relief by public works—until the economic royalists of campaign mythology "have found their master."

There is room here for maneuver on detail, none for compromise on principle. The "compromise" which the administration is now the form of a bill to be introduced is expected to take place in the house of representatives by a member of the ways and means committee. It will not be labeled as an administration measure but it will have administration support.

The proposal will be to accept Chief Justice Hughes' argument that 75 years is a proper age for judicial retirement and to provide for the appointment of an additional justice for every member of the court who has reached that age. This would apply to four members of the present court—Brandeis, Hughes, Sutherland and McReynolds. However, the enlargement would not be permanent, for with the resignation of these over-age judges, the court would return to the sacred figure of nine.

Whether this plan is pushed depends in part on the nature of the report of the senate judiciary committee. But the threats of a filibuster now coming from the Tories in the senate, show that the conservatives are frightened by any talk of compromise. From the Roosevelt point of view it would be a strong move to roll up an administration victory on the is sue in the house of representatives before taking on the half-reformed and irresponsible senate.

Large Vessels Will Navigate Volga Channel

MOSCOW — (UP)—The Volga-Moscow canal, the largest river canal in the world, solves three important national economic tasks. The first—to insure the population of the capital with drinking water from the Volga. The canal will add daily 100,000,000 gallons of water to the Moscow water supply. The residents of the Soviet capital will receive daily 600 liters of water per capita.

The second task is to supply water to the Moscow river and its tributaries, flowing within the bounds of the city. For that purpose, 280,000,000 pails of water will be supplied daily.

The third, and the most important task is to link the Soviet capital with Volga and to transform Moscow into a port accessible to steamers with deep sea displacement.

The canal represents a gigantic system of complicated structures. Its length is 70 miles, of which about 20 represent navigable water reservoirs.

Construction of the canal was begun at the beginning of 1932, and assumed full swing in the spring of 1933.

ENGINE FAMED IN WRECK NOW RUN AS LOCAL

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—Like a gallant but worn-out race horse, the engine that pulled "Old 97" to its famed wreck near Danville, Va., in 1903, is now a "local" of the Southern Railway, officials disclosed here today.

The engine, which retains the number of its palmy days, 1106 hauls the passenger train on the Marion to Rocky Hill branch of the railroad.

"No, she doesn't round the curves any more at ninety miles an hour," Jack Crow, engineer, said. "But you still have to hold her back when she gets going good. Yep, she's a great old engine."

Old "1106" used to haul crack train No. 97, the pride of the South, from Washington, to Atlanta, to Birmingham. Though it was a solid mail train, it attained a reputation and glamour unsurpassed in railroad annals.

The ballad of Steven Brady and the wreck of "Old Ninety-seven," epitomizing the Danville wreck, has become an American epic.

Today "1106" as it makes its lackadaisical run through North Carolina, is decidedly unstreamlined and unusually massive. The engine stands 14 feet from tracks to smokestack. Its six wheels have a diameter of 73 inches.

The old-fashioned cowcatcher, oil headlight and wooden pilot on the 40-year-old engine have been replaced by more modern equipment.

The famous disaster occurred in 1903 as 1106 headed for the huge five-deck trestle across the Dan river. Failing to make the curve at the trestle, the mail train jumped the tracks and hurtled into the river.

The fireman, engineer and 32 mail clerks were killed as the engine pulled all its coaches into the abyss below.

LOVE AFFAIRS TANGLE ARTIST

VIENNA (UP)—Johann Proel's colorful career has come to a premature end, at least temporarily.

Proel, a talented 42-year-old painter, may be a dangerous crook, but he is also a lovable fellow, and women of all ages fell easy victims to his fascination.

Early in life he started out as a "never-do-well." At 14, Proel ran away from home to become a sailor. As cabin-boy he crossed to New York in 1910. There, after serving as dish-washer and waiter, he established himself as a hot-dog vendor.

For some reason, which he does not like to explain, he attracted the displeasure of the New York police and returned to his family in Vienna in 1913. Here he was boy-waiter for one year.

When the war broke out, he immediately joined the colors and fought in many parts of the world, collecting wounds and medals.

Found War Glamorous

The war was over much too soon for his tastes and he was glad when he found a chance to join the French Foreign Legion, with which, for eight years, he fought rebellious tribes in Morocco, receiving more wounds and medals. As he had always been a good draftsman, he then decided to become a painter and went to Paris, where he joined an academy of arts. During his four years in Paris he became an excellent artist. But one day a few valuable paintings were found missing after Proel had visited a gallery there.

After an interlude in a French prison he went to Dresden without a penny. There he had the idea of introducing himself to a naive young American girl, who studied art in Dresden, as the famous French painter, Henri Matisse.

Lend Him Money

The girl, who was tremendously proud of her acquaintance with the world-known post-Impressionist artist, gladly helped the great man out when he was in "temporary financial difficulties."

After lending him about $800, she thought of looking up what the encyclopedia had to say about the great painter. To her surprise she found that Matisse was born in 1869, while her "Matisse" did not look more than 40. That meant the end of her romance and also the end of Proel's sojourn in Dresden.

He returned to Austria. In Salzburg and Vienna, the black-eyed, athletic man with graying temples and the many scars easily found women, ranging from 13 to 57, who were only too glad to marry the interesting artist and, for this purpose, to finance his alleged divorce in Paris and a lawsuit for 500,000 schillings which he asserted he was conducting in France.

But his last bride, a wealthy middle-aged Viennese, had a thorough inquiry made into Proel's life through a private detective agency. That led to Proel's arrest.

"Better Element" Is Aid In Ending Old Abuses

(Editor's note: This is the third of three stories on Harlan County, Ky., one of the "last frontier" mining communities, and how its ruthless autocratic rule is fading before modern labor's invasion.)

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HARLAN, Ky., June 11—A large element in the town of Harlan bitterly resents the name of "Bloody Harlan," and the publicity that has come to the district from the turbulence and violence that have scattered the past 10 years.

Harlan itself is a quiet town of 5000 people, nestling in the eastern Kentucky hills at a point where the Cumberland river is formed by the junction of three creeks or "forks"—Clover Fork, Poor Fork and Martin's Fork. In the valleys through which these forks come down to Harlan through the hills, lie the coal tips and mines, each with its village of wooden houses, usually company-owned and on company property. These camps, some 40 of them, house from 300 to 3000 people each.

Few miners live in Harlan town, but they are its life blood, coming in to trade or spend their money. An extraordinary number of men bandaged or on crutches may always be seen on the street, miners who have been injured in the mines. The men are lean and leathery. It would be hard to find a fat man in Harlan county. But though Harlan, the county seat, strives to keep separate from the county, when twilight comes the hills move perceptibly in upon the town, overhanging it in dark masses. The mines are always present in Harlan, even though unseen.

Harlan's Picture One-Sided
MAYOR L. O. SMITH is one of those who deplore the light in which the news has placed Harlan. "We believe we have one of the cleanest cities in the United States," he says. "We have no crime in the town, we have low taxes, and we thought we had accomplished a great deal in education, religious and civic work."

"But this is a boom country, a new country. We have had some shabby, troublesome labor leaders here and some shabby, troublesome mine operators. Personally, if some of the witnesses on both sides of the La Follette Civil Liberties committee never came back it would be all right with me. The picture presented before the La Follette committee in Washington was presented with a deliberate purpose, and hence one-sided."

A. C. Jones, banker, agrees. He was the first mayor of Harlan, 25 years ago, and until recently superintendent of schools.

When the coal boom came during the World War, Jones notes, "the county grew so fast that taxes couldn't keep up with our county needs. Hence we asked the coal companies to give the sites for schools and pay half the cost of building them. The county would then equip and own them. The coal companies were glad to pay up to 85 per cent of these costs sometimes, as it made for greater stability of labor. We now have a seven or eight-month school term, and hope to make it nine months."

One Class, One Book
SOME school facilities, however, are still lamentable. One school visited had 26 children in a single room of an abandoned coal company warehouse, heated by a single iron stove. Its broken window panes make it impossible to heat it at all in cold weather. A single copy of the third-grade reader had to suffice for all third graders. But here again is improvement, with PWA building a modern district school at Evans nearby, which will eliminate many such conditions.

Harlan County "schoolhouse" (above), consisting of one room in a former coal company warehouse, heated with an iron stove. Daniel Boone Smith, commonwealth attorney, who will prosecute in the Musick murder case, sits beside the anvil mounted on the Harlan county courthouse steps, on which confiscated weapons are smashed with sledges.

The growth of the company-paid deputy system in such a community is a natural one. S. J. Dickinson, head of the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association, and of the Mary Helen mine, had to go up into the hills on horseback when his mine was projected. There weren't even roads, let alone towns. So when several hundred miners were brought in to work the seams, housing and food stores had to be created. The coal companies were the only ones able to provide them. They did. There was practically no county law enforcement machinery. Guards for payrolls and property had to be provided. The companies did it.

But out of both these necessities grew up a system which became vicious after its necessity passed. Company-paid deputy sheriffs gradually presumed on their authority and instituted a reign of terror, not only in the interests of the men who paid them, but often in furthering personal grudges. The quality of men who would undertake this service deteriorated, till they became little better than "gun thugs." Their influence in local politics became strong.

A Dime? What Is That?

OUT of the early necessity for company commissaries grew the scrip system — payment in perforated "company coins" or certificates. Thus in the old days many a miner never saw money, and the story is common of the miner's daughter who found a real dime in the road and tendered it hesitatingly at a store, saying "Mister, kin I buy something with this? Is it good? It ain't got no hole in it."

Today, however, this system, too, is passing. It offered a chance for profiteering at the miners' expense that was too often taken, though it is fair to say that today some of the company commissary prices compare favorably with those of chain stores. Today almost all companies offer payment either in scrip or U. S. money. Scrip remains as a convenient way of drawing in advance on wages not yet due or earned.

Both systems are under heavy attack. Governor Chandler's voluntary agreement with operators that they abandon the practice of paying deputy sheriffs has not, of course, the force of law. But a measure to outlaw the practice was barely defeated in the state legislature a year ago, and will certainly come up again in the session of 1938. This time it is likely to pass as Governor Chandler says:

"The company-paid deputy system is doomed," and has sent state police to Harlan to keep order until a permanent solution is found.

Modern Gun Law Proposed

ANOTHER legislative action which failed last year but may become law in 1938 is a bill to force redemption of the mine scrip at par. Harlan merchants sometimes must accept the scrip from miners in order to sell at all, and when they turn it back to the companies for cash there is a discount of 10, 20, or even 30 per cent. The scrip-pay arrangement, common throughout the mining region, seems as doomed as the swaggering private deputy sheriffs.

Another change that may tend to bring peace to Harlan is the revival of proposals for a modern gun law in Kentucky. At present there is no law whatever governing sale or possession of small arms. Pistols and revolvers are sold and owned without permit, and it is not uncommon for them to be raffled as punch-board prizes. Only the carrying of concealed weapons is prohibited. It is very difficult to get convictions on this charge in the Harlan area, for the jury is apt to be carrying more weapons than the defendant, and usually acquits.

Commonwealth Attorney Daniel Boone Smith of Harlan, is one of those who has sought a stronger gun law in the past, and he believes the next session of the legislature may take the matter in hand.

Peace and Order Ahead

ALL in all, better days seem unmistakably in store for Harlan, although the coming may be gradual. Already the difference is marked.

Miners at a recent open meeting at Wallins, near Harlan, drank beer, ate sandwiches, signed U. M. W. application cards in the open sunlight, and cheered as they passed a resolution: "... this means the end of the intolerable and unspeakable reign of terror against the coal miners... liberty has replaced tyranny, reason has supplanted the bludgeon in the settlement of industrial disputes... Bloody Harlan is on the highway of recovery... a new day has dawned for the coal miners... we commend the governor for his courageous action

NAVY "LICKS" ARMY IN "AIR" PICKING HERE

BY PAUL VISSMAN

The United States Navy beat the army to the punch in Orange county so far as recruiting air corps reserve fliers is concerned, according to a survey today.

Yesterday the War Department announced plans to build up an Army Air Corps reserve officer strength as a nucleus for a large fighting air force in time of war.

Gets Information
Corps area commanders were instructed to circulate all licensed airplane pilots in their areas to determine how many commercial pilots would be willing to serve in the air corps in event of war.

The Register was anxious to know the same thing, contacted fliers in the county, imagine the surprise when it was learned that there are approximately 25 fliers in the county who could qualify for army air corps positions—at least they could have qualified, six weeks ago.

Already Accepted
Today, however, the majority of them already have signified their willingness to accept commissions in—the United States Navy Air Corps Reserve.

Approximately six weeks ago circulars were received by every qualified pilot asking if they would be willing to accept commissions in the navy flying corps in the event of war and the majority accepted.

Killer Apes Dillinger; Police Hope To Oblige With Replica Of Death

By NEA Service

LOGANSPOUT, Ind., June 11—Indiana state police, ranging central Indiana in a frantic search for Al Brady, who deliberately seeks to duplicate John Dillinger's career in banditry, are determined to oblige him by providing an exact replica of Dillinger's ending.

Up to now, Brady has done an amazing job of fitting himself to the title of "The New Dillinger." The parallels are striking. Brady was an Indiana farm hand, like Dillinger. The farm bored him, and he stole an auto. That put him in the state reformatory, just as Dillinger went there for breaking into a store.

Brady, in the early months of 1936, recruited himself "gangs" in an Indianapolis poolroom and started out deliberately on a career that "would make Dillinger look like a hick."

Terrorized Same Town
They began the same type of roving bank and jewelry store boys, was shot in the escape from the Lima robbery. The group rushed to Indianapolis and demanded treatment of Dr. E. E. Rose, much as the Dillingers had done several times. Someone tipped police, who surrounded the doctor's house. The Brady thugs shot their way to freedom, leaving Sergeant Richard Rivers dead as they fled the scene.

Margaret Barry

Now there was murder on their hands, and like Dillinger they felt the desperation of men in the shadow of the electric chair.

Jail Break Similar

But Chicago police captured Brady promptly when he ventured there to dispose of some of his jewelry-store loot. It looked as though the three-month attempt to emulate Dillinger was washed up. James Dalhove, another of Brady's gang, was seized the next day, and several of the fences who had helped dispose of the gang's loot were also caught and promptly charged with larceny of receiving stolen property, some $50,000 of which was recovered.

With Brady, or Barton as he sometimes called himself, was Margaret Barry, a 21-year-old girl who had left her husband to follow Brady. She was released after brief detention.

When the roundup was completed, Brady, Dalhove, and Clarence Lee Shaffer, alias Jackson, found themselves in the Greenfield, Ill., jail, awaiting trial on charges of murdering Rivers. In October of last year came their chance to follow farther the Dillinger path. They staged a jail break.

Leaping on Sheriff Clarence Watson in an unguarded moment, they clubbed him into unconsciousness, fired on spectators who tried to interfere, stole a bystander's car, and fled. Despite the most energetic man hunt since Dillinger, the trio escaped.

Trail of Terror

A month later they turned up in Carthage, Ind., where they held up a bank and again escaped in a bullet-riddled sedan. That ended their first year of the effort to emulate Dillinger.

But the similarity was to be carried still farther. On May 25 of this year a maroon-colored sedan drove up to the Goodland, Ind., State Bank. One man remained at the wheel. Two entered the bank. Holding a clerk and a constable who happened to walk in at gun point for 15 minutes while waiting for the time lock to open, they looted the bank and again fled.

State police responded to the call and gave chase. Some 20 miles out of town they sighted the bandit car and gave chase. Shots were exchanged, and a regular Dillinger chase was on. The pursuing officers lost sight of the bandit car, and slowed down at a crossing to see which way it had gone.

Suddenly from behind a church the bandits' car issued, blazing a stream of fire from a submachine gun. Highway Patrolman Paul Minneman lurched from the bullet-sprayed car and tumbled to the highway. Deputy Sheriff Elmer Craig's shotgun clattered from his hands as three bullets found him.

Man Hunt Pressed

Minneman today lies near death with six bullets in his body, and there may be another red mark of murder against Al Brady and his gang in their pursuit of the Dillinger record. Craig is expected to recover.

Using a technique of road-blocking, aerial patrols, and radio blockade developed during the hunt for Dillinger, Indiana highway patrolmen are scouring the state in an effort to parallel ohn Dillinger's career. They want to make certain that even the endings are the same.

Old-time beekeepers frequently used the fumes from burning fungi as a means of clearing a hive.

The Mixing Bowl

By ANN MEREDITH

RIBBON SALAD

I Fresh crab meat and Canned grapefruit.
II Spicy tomato aspic.
Fresh asparagus tips.

III Cottage cheese seasoned with minced chives or green onion tops (1½ teaspoons) and a dash of steak sauce.

Use a deep loaf cake tin to mould this salad. To anchor the various layers, dissolve 2 envelopes of gelatin in proper amount of grapefruit juice, heated. Put a quarter-inch of gelatin in bottom of pan, arrange a thick layer of crab meat and grapefruit on gelatin, and chill until set. Make the tomato aspic out of a can of tomato soup, ½ cup of lemon juice, dissolved in soup, and plenty of tomato to remove the sugary taste. Let this aspic reach the jelling stage before you turn it over the crab meat layer. Arrange asparagus tips in tomato and chill until the two layers are well set. Mix the creamy cottage cheese with chives and steak sauce, smooth it over the jelly layers and pour over the gelatin, the remaining grapefruit gelatin.

To serve: Unmould and slice. At once on lettuce and garnish with sliced tomatoes and stuffed eggs. Doesn't this sound party-ish?

A NEW FISH PIE

Slices of bread, crusts removed, bread buttered.
2 tall cans of shrimp, washed and cleaned before dicing.
2/3 pound fresh crab meat
1 heaping cup of grated cheese
2 eggs beaten with
1 cup evaporated milk, to which
Add 1 cup water
Salt and pepper.

—Contributed and tested.
Use a long, deep pan, or a glass casserole. Rub dish with butter and line bottom and sides with buttered bread. Arrange the diced shrimp and crab meat on the bread, with a dusting of salt and pepper. Cover with more buttered bread, sprinkled with the cup of grated cheese. Pour the beaten eggs and milk over the dish, and bake 25 minutes in a medium hot oven.

With the fish pie serve a crisp green salad lightly dressed with olive oil and wine vinegar, and for dessert serve iced cantaloupe or fresh berries.

CORAL CRANDALL, heroine and senior at Elton College.
DAVID ARMSTRONG, Elton chemistry professor and Coral's husband.
DONNA ALLEN, Coral's sorority roommate.
HOYT MARQUIS, Coral's one-time fiance.

Yesterday: Donna learns about Coral's secret marriage and threatens to disclose it unless Coral helps her in her classwork.

CHAPTER III

CORAL twirled the stem of her empty cocktail glass, glanced at her wrist watch, and wished for the twentieth time that Hoyt would decide to go home. The cocktail party had been given at the country club for the young people home for spring vacation. It had been pleasant enough. She had seen some of her friends for the first time in several months. Besides, it had proved an easy way to satisfy both her parents and Hoyt, who were all angry at the way she had avoided him during the week. Now, however, almost everyone had left, it was nearing dinner time, and they should be off. How much longer was Hoyt going to stand drinking at the bar? If he kept on, he wouldn't be able to drive.

She got up from the couch on which she had been sitting and walked over to the archway which separated the main lounge of the club from the bar. Hoyt, his hair rumpled, his face flushed, was engaged in a chat with the bartender. "Hoyt," Coral said. "Don't you think it's time we started back to town?"

Hoyt turned to look at her. "Huh? What's up, Whassamatter?" His head drooped, and with a visible effort he straightened it. "Why, it's Coral! Did you get lonesome, baby? Have a drink. Bartender! A drink for Miss Crandall . . . and one for yourself. Drink to my wedding, Jack! What'll it be, beautiful?"

Coral moved forward and took him by the arm. "Let's discuss that on the way home. We really must be going."

AT last, after more words, Hoyt permitted her to lead him outside. He climbed into the driver's seat of the big sedan, mumbling to himself.

"Won't you let me drive home, Hoyt?" Coral said, as he fumbled with the keys. "You're awfully tired. Let me do the work this time."

Hoyt answered her, his words carefully precise. "Now, don't you worry, little girl. You just trust Hoyt. Hoyt will get you home to mama in plenty of time for dinner. But don't you think it would be nice if you gave me a little kiss before we start?"

Before she could protest, Hoyt's arms were around her, his hot, liquor-heavy breath in her face. Desperately she twisted her head, and his kiss, greedy and wet, glanced her cheek. He thrust her away from him. "So. That's how you feel, is it? You think you're too good to be kissed. You're getting a lot of high-hat ideas, Coral Crandall. Just because a fellow has a little drink and enjoys himself, you act like a martyred saint. Act any way you want to. I don't care. You can't get away from me. Don't forget, the wedding's in June, whether you like it or not. You're gonna walk right out of Elton, into the church and up the aisle with yours truly."

Coral looked desperately at her father. There was no help for it. She picked up the phone. "Hello, Hoyt? Coral speaking."

Without another word, he started the car and roared out of the driveway onto the main road. It was a 20-minute drive from the country club into Wheatland and Coral's home, and those minutes extended themselves into terrifying hours as the car rushed through the spring twilight. Hoyt drove furiously, ignoring traffic regulations and the rights of other motorists. Coral's frightened eyes watched the speedometer rise as the powerful car lunged on its way. Sixty . . . sixty-five . . . seventy-five, and up to eighty-five. The car swerved from one side of the road to the other, missing other cars by a hair's breadth, hurtling through intersections in the nick of time. At last they drew up in front of the rambling, old-fashioned white house which was Coral's home. With great clashing and grinding the car skidded to a stop. Coral put her hand shakily on the steering wheel. "Hoyt, you shouldn't drive like that. It's a miracle that we didn't kill some one or kill ourselves. You mustn't be so reckless. I'm sorry if I made you angry. When you feel better you may understand."

HOYT did not answer her, but sat slumped down behind the wheel, his blood-shot eyes half hidden under drooping lids. His handsome but weak mouth was sulky, the muscles of his face lax, his jaw sagging. Coral sighed a little, then opened the door of the sedan. "Thanks for taking me this afternoon, Hoyt," she said. He remained silent, but as she entered the house she heard the car roar off down the street.

She did not undress immediately, but sat on the edge of her bed, turning over in her mind the events of the afternoon. It was clear to her now that Hoyt was going to make a fuss when he knew about David.

"Well," she thought to herself, "suppose he does. He can't do any real harm, after all." But for all that, the little feeling of foreboding which had come over her was not easily dismissed, and as she freshened herself for dinner she thought uneasily more than once of Hoyt's imperious words, his bloodshot eyes and the angry, sulky twist of his weak mouth. How wonderful it would be when all this secrecy was over! And, thank heaven, she would be going back to Elton in two days; back to David with his strong arms and reassuring smile. Days away from him were ages long.

AFTER dinner, Coral and her parents sat in the book-filled, comfortably shabby living room, sipping their coffee. When her father emptied his cup and set it down on the table beside him, Coral knew that the moment which she had been dreading all evening had arrived. He cleared his throat, looked at her benevolently over his glasses. "Well, daughter, did you and Hoyt have a good time this afternoon?"

"Why, yes, Daddy," Coral replied. She sought safety in the indefinite. "There were lots of people there I hadn't seen in a long time; Kitty and Sue and Bob Deering and . . ."

Her father interrupted her generally. "How about Hoyt? You hadn't seen much of him for a long time, had you? Not even since you've been home." He noticed her distraught expression. "There isn't anything wrong between you two, is there?" His voice was troubled.

"No, Dad. No, of course not . . . only . . ."

"Only what?" Her mother's voice intruded a bit sharply. "There is something wrong, Coral. I can see it in your face. Have you and Hoyt been quarreling over some silly little thing?"

"Not exactly, Mother. It's just that Hoyt and I . . . well, we don't seem to have much in common any more."

"Nonsense," her mother said brusquely. "You've always gotten along beautifully. You can't afford to be getting notions about Hoyt now. Why, everything's all settled."

CORAL forgot herself. "It's nothing of the kind!"

Her father looked at her quizzically. "We've always thought it was, Coral. You know it might be a very serious matter for all of us if you changed your mind."

"Oh," Coral said to herself, "my mind was never made up. You and Hoyt and his family made it up for me!" Then aloud, "I know, Dad. It's just that I want to be free . . . and well, more sure about things."

"Fiddlesticks, Coral, you're imagining things," said her mother. "Have you asked Hoyt to the Spring Hop at Elton yet?"

"No," said Coral. How could she tell them she was going with David, going with her husband? "I . . . I had planned to ask someone else."

"You'll do nothing of the kind, young lady. Do you want to ruin your future and your father's and mine, too? You telephone Hoyt this minute and ask him. You know he's expecting it. The very idea!"

"But, Mother . . ." Coral's eyes were frantic. Her father noticed it and started to speak. "Dear, if you don't want to, it's all right."

As Coral still hesitated, her mother lost all patience. She got up from her chair and walked briskly to the telephone, took the receiver off the hook. . . . "Mother, don't," Coral cried. . . . but Mrs. Crandall was unperturbed. She dialed a number, waited a moment, then said, "Hello . . . Mrs. Marquis? Mrs. Crandall calling. Coral wants to speak to Hoyt. Just a moment." She beckoned to her daughter. Coral looked desperately at her father, but he had opened his paper and was reading. There was no help for it. She walked across the room and picked up the phone. "Hello, Hoyt? Coral speaking."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

SECRETARY BIRD, OF AFRICA, IS A BIRD OF PREY, THE SAME AS EAGLES AND HAWKS, BUT, SINCE IT SECURES ITS PREY ON THE GROUND INSTEAD OF IN MID-AIR, IT HAS DEVELOPED POWERFUL LEGS.

ANT RICE (ANT EGGS) IS AN IMPORTANT ARTICLE OF FOOD IN AFRICA.

FLOWERS OF THE LITTLE ELEPHANT PLANT HAVE A COMICAL RESEMBLANCE TO THE TRUNKS OF MINIATURE ELEPHANTS.

THE secretary bird bears a close resemblance to other birds of prey, with the exception of its legs. These have developed into long, powerful weapons, with which it stamps out the life of snakes.

It is favorite prey. A snake stands small chance against the lightning-like thrusts of the legs, which are armed at the feet with sharp claws.

DEPUTIES STOP UNION MEMBERS

MONROE, Mich., June 11.—(UP)—Scores of armed special deputies today turned back out-of-town automobiles they believed bore C. I. O. unionists coming to aid steel strikers who were routed by tear and nausea gas at the New-Ton Steel company plant reopening.

Five hundred vigilantes who had been on call during the night gradually were demobilized but told to remain ready for any new crisis.

Fifteen cars in an advance caravan of sympathetic United Automobile Workers union members from Pontiac were stopped and several of their occupants were questioned by police but released at once. There was no violence.

The cars had left Pontiac before the strike-holiday march which had impended was called off by Homer Martin, youthful U. A. W. president.

Capt. Laurence Lyon, of the Michigan state police, representing Governor Murphy as an observer in the area, reported to his district barracks at nearby Erie, Mich., "The situation is well under control."

During the night the deputies blocked the main Detroit-Toledo highway in the center of Monroe with two big trucks drawn up so that only one automobile could pass between them at a time. A hundred deputies enforced the blockade.

In the libel suit Stanley charged that the picture defamed him—as a member of the prison commission—in depicting members of the commission offering to release a convict for a bribe.

He charged his reputation was further damaged by the picture because it showed the prison commissioners as "stern, callous, brutal, hard hearted and savage men."

The picture was based on the book of Robert E. Burns, who twice escaped from a Georgia chain gang. Burns' book described his experience on the chain gang, to which he was sentenced for six to 10 years for robbery by intimidation.

Georgia Official Wins Film Action

ATLANTA, Ga., June 11.—(UP)—The Georgia court of appeals today ruled that Vivian Stanley, member of the Georgia prison commission, has shown sufficient cause for action in his 1100,000 libel suit against Warner Brothers for their picture, "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

The suit now goes back to the Fulton superior court for trial. The lower court previously held that the picture, as adapted from the book, "I Am a Fugitive from a Georgia Chain Gang," was not sufficient grounds for action.

In the libel suit Stanley charged that the picture defamed him—as a member of the prison commission—in depicting members of the commission offering to release a convict for a bribe.

He charged his reputation was further damaged by the picture because it showed the prison commissioners as "stern, callous, brutal, hard hearted and savage men."

GREYHOUND LINES TO MOVE JUNE 15

William Simpson, local agent for the Greyhound lines, announced today that the company would open its new depot in the Pacific Electric building, East Fourth street, June 15.

Simpson said that all business of the Greyhound and Motor Transit lines would be handled at the new location after that date.

Plans to move the depot from its present location, corner Third and Spurgeon streets were announced several weeks ago in The Register. Under the present plan the building now housing the depot probably will be leased.

Spurgeon School Students Awarded Fire Drill Medal

Students of Spurgeon school gathered at 11 a. m. today in Walker's theater to receive the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce award for first place in the city school fire drill contests.

The plaque was presented Principal Walter Eggers by Rex Kenney, president of the chamber of commerce. Eggers, in a brief talk, accepted the award on behalf of his school.

Following presentation of the plaque, a fire prevention motion picture, secured through the Santa Ana Fire Department, was shown. Fire Captain Dwight Miller and Fire Marshal Elmer Gates, who had charge of the contest, spoke briefly during the program.

Award of the plaque marks the end of a contest held annually in the schools. Fire drills are held at intervals during the year and schools are scored on points given for promptness in evacuating the building, closing doors, helping crippled children from the building and orderliness of the students as they leave the building.

At the end of the school year, points are tallied and the winner receives the chamber award. The plaque must be won three times by one school before it becomes the permanent property of the school.

Court Notes

Mrs. Betty M. Whittemore charged her husband, Rex F. Whittemore, with desertion, in a divorce suit filed today in superior court. They married at Pomona in 1918 and separated April 28, 1936.

Mrs. Georgia B. Farren today petitioned superior court for letters of administration over the $2500 estate left by her late husband, J. H. Farren, or to set aside the estate to the widow.

Suit for $3450 damages was filed in superior court late yesterday by William Butler, 19, and his mother, Olive Butler, against Harold D. Courtney and Earl K. Courtney. Damages are asked for injuries suffered by young Butler last November 11 when his motorcycle collided with the Courtney car at Spadra and Malvern, Fullerton.

Bellflower police led Santa Ana police yesterday to check up on an abandoned car registered to Elsa Eckhart, 816 North Flower, Santa Ana, and left in Bellflower. SIMPSON WINS SLANDER SUIT

LONDON, June 11.—(UP)—Ernest Aldrich Simpson, after months of self-imposed silence, sought redress in the high court of justice today against gossip that resulted from the divorce suit brought against him by the present Duchess of Windsor.

The result was that he obtained a full unreserved apology from Mrs. Joan Sutherland, a society woman, who at a west end luncheon table said he had been "well paid" to permit the then Wallis Warfield Simpson to divorce him.

Costs were awarded against Mrs. Sutherland. Simpson sought no damages and the lord chief justice of England, Lord Hewart, who heard the case in person, withdrew it from the record.

Simpson's chief counsel, H. J. Wallington, asked him if he had received any sum in connection with the divorce.

"Most certainly there was no payment," Simpson said. "Absolutely not."

It was announced in Simpson's behalf, that if the rumor were repeated at any time:

"He certainly will pursue the slanderer with all the rigor of the law."

Sir Patrick Hastings, for Mrs. Sutherland, said that she wholeheartedly accepted Simpson's statement that there was not the slightest foundation for her remark and that she expressed extreme sorrow for having repeated the rumor.

It was expected that costs would approximate 550 pounds ($2,750). Counsel Wallington said that the suit was an ordinary slander action, but because of circumstances under which it arose "it has obtained significance and importance that otherwise it could not possibly have had."

This was a reference to the romance that rocked an empire and put Simpson in the position of maintaining silence, according to his code.

Police News

On a tip of Harold Shafer, Santa Ana, returning from the naval base at San Diego, that he had picked up three boys who told him they were running away, police were able to pick up the boys and hold them until the San Diego police were notified yesterday.

Dr. J. H. Simpson, 306 North Parton street, called police last evening to report the door of a store at Fourth and Spurgeon streets had been left open and the store apparently was unwatched. Officers C. S. Gross and L. C. Rogers made an investigation and reported that the owner was in the rear of the store.

Orange police called the local headquarters at 7:50 p. m. yesterday, to report a car, registered to Albert Kile, Santa Ana, had been parked on the street since early morning. Mr. Kile reported at the station that he had run out of gasoline.

Sergeant C. V. Adams and Officer J. W. Foster brought a bicycle belonging to Carl Downs, 120 South Flower street, back to him a few hours after it was stolen from Walker's State theater, Wednesday night. Police had the car reporting the theft at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday. They found the "bike" at 6 a. m. yesterday, in a lumber pile at Second and Artesia streets.

The penalty for "hurrying" was placed on five persons by City Judge J. G. Mitchell yesterday. The offenders were: Leona B. Prescott, South Pasadena, $5; Harvey C. Atchley, Colton, $15; William O. Wagner, Los Angeles, $6; J. J. Murray, Los Angeles, $6; and Mahlon C. Chambers, Huntington Park, $6.

One violator of the glaring lights regulation was fined $1 and four boulevard-stop jumpers were fined $2 each.

From Henry Moser's car, parked early yesterday morning behind the Y.M.C.A. thieves stole a $45 portable typewriter, Moser, resident of the "Y," told city police. A check-up is being made today.

Bellflower police led Santa Ana police yesterday to check up on an abandoned car registered to Elsa Eckhart, 816 North Flower, Santa Ana, and left in Bellflower. Assistant Chief Harry Fin interviewed Mrs. O. C. Trasel at the local address but Elsa Eckhart was not known to her. A further hunt for the car owner is being made.

KEN Murray SAYS:

HOLLYWOOD, June 11.—I don't see just why F.D.R. is complaining about the long vacation the supreme court has declared for itself. After all, eight straight months on the bench is even longer than the ball players have—and the justices don't get any spring training junket.

Besides, when the old boys get to be 70 or more, it's about time they played a little hooky. A long vacation will do 'em good because, after all, they aren't going to spend the summer stuffing themselves with hot dogs and riding merry-go-rounds.

Personally, it looks to me like the justices have finally subscribed to the New Deal and are working a 35-week year from now on. Copyright, 1937, McNaught Syn. Inc.

KEEP SHIPS OUT OF MEDITERRANEAN

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(UP)—The navy decided today to keep American naval training ships out of the Mediterranean sea during the present tense situation resulting from the Spanish civil war.

The department cancelled scheduled visits of the battleships Arkansas, Wyoming and Texas, carrying midshipmen from the naval academy on their annual training cruise to the ports of Athens, Greece, and Laverio, Italy. The ships were scheduled to visit Athens on July 14 and Laverio on July 20.

Navy officials declined to comment on the reasons behind the cancellation of the proposed visits. They said definitely, however, that the ships would not enter the Mediterranean and that visits to other European ports would be substituted.

INQUIRY MAY DELAY ACTION ON WAGE BILL

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(UP)—Senate orders for an investigation of unemployment and relief pending today to ease pressure for amendment of the administration's $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation but may hinder the New Deal's wage and hours bill.

The investigation resolution specified that the committee may inquire into unemployment caused by labor saving devices "mechanical and otherwise."

That language appeared to authorize the committee to examine working conditions in any factory anywhere in the United States to determine whether so-called "stretch-out" practices or over long hours are closing jobs to the jobless. Such information would bear directly on President Roosevelt's plan to establish a federal board to fix maximum hours and minimum wages for industry in or affecting interstate commerce.

Cloakroom gossip indicated that congress did not like the Roosevelt wage and hours plan as drafted by New Deal experts. If it were acted upon at this session—and there

U. S. AND JAPAN PARLEYS URGED

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(UP)—Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper proposed today that war between the United States and Japan should be "outlawed forever."

Addressing the luncheon of the Business Advisory Council in honor of the Japanese economic mission touring the country, Roper urged "frequent and frank" conferences to solve any problems between the two countries.

Landings the "constructive attitude" of Japanese Ambassador Hiroshi Saito, Roper said that "it is through representatives of his vision and understanding that our international relationship, supported by good will, can be most effectively safeguarded and perpetuated."

"Let us resolve to now and forever outlaw war between these two nations which have all to gain through peace and good will," he said.

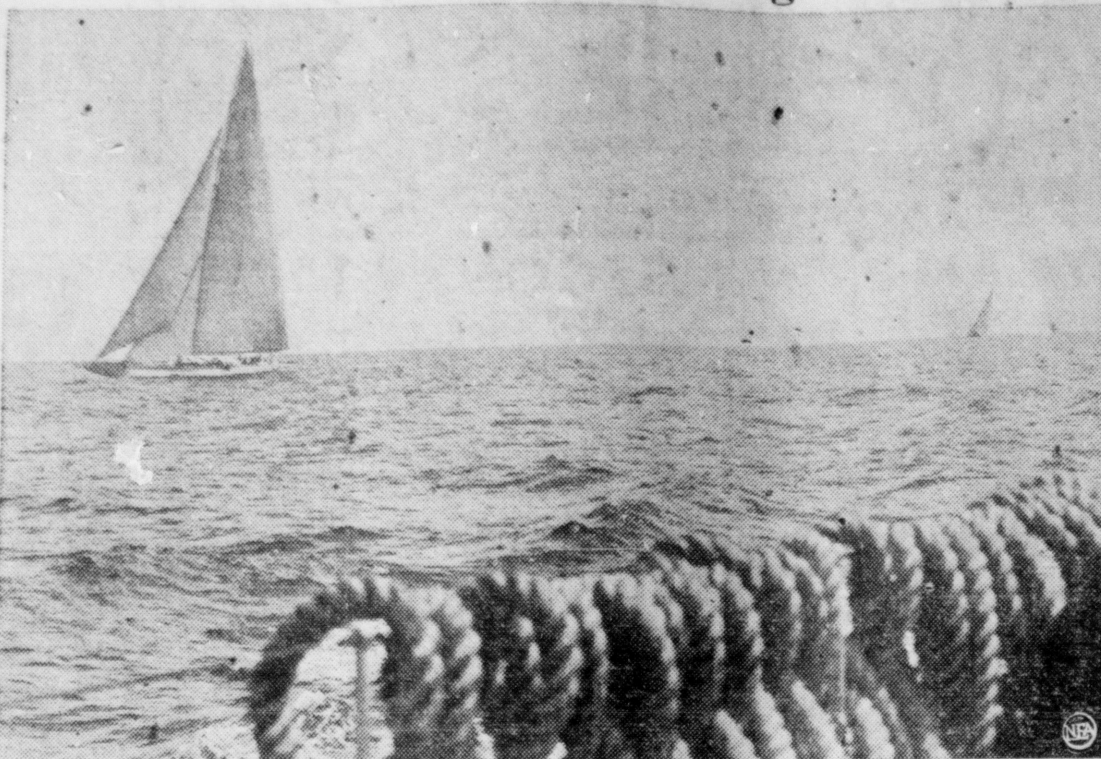

"The objectives of every nation should be at all times two fold. First, to solve individual national problems in the best interest and for promoting the greatest happiness. Second, to think and act cooperatively through broad understanding and good will, looking to the success of the interwoven relationship of all nations."

will be tremendous administration pressure for action—the bill would be redrafted, probably to limit the scope of the proposed labor standards board in fixing minimum and maximum hours and wages.

But there was an active minority movement to postpone action until next session. The proposed investigation or unemployment and relief may be advanced as a reason for delay, so that congress may act with the benefit of information to be obtained in that inquiry.

The $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation for the fiscal year beginning July 1 reached the senate appropriations committee today with endorsement of a subcommittee which has examined it.

First America's Cup Trial Easy Sailing for the Ranger

The Yankee a tiny triangle near the horizon (right), easily outsailed in the first America's Cup trial race off Newport, R. I. Harold Vanderbilt's $300,000 Ranger scuds toward the finish line with a six-minute lead. Because of the conditions of the race, the result was not accepted by yachtsmen as a criterion of the relative speeds of the boats.

BUILDERS PLAN ANNUAL PICNIC

Members of the Orange County Builders' Exchange will hold their annual picnic in Irvine Park, June 19, according to an announcement today by A. H. Stovall, general chairman in charge of arrangements.

Stovall said the picnic will start at 2 p. m. and continue until late at night. A barbecue dinner, prepared by "Husky" Young and members of his committee, will be served at 5:30 p. m.

A program of entertainment, featuring contests and races for the children as well as adults will be under direction of Fred Sanford, with prizes to be awarded. In the evening, music and dancing will entertain the adults.

Stovall said that the Exchange will furnish meat, beans, coffee, sugar, cream and ice cream for the dinner. Members and their friends attending the affair will bring their own silverware, cups, plates and anything else they care to add to the meal.

Reservations for the affair will be received at the office of the Orange County Builders' Exchange by G. W. Bassett, secretary-manager of the Exchange.

COMPETITION IN ELK'S CONTEST PLANNED HERE

First competition in the ritualistic contest of the southern district of Elkdom, preparatory to the state competition will be held Sunday morning at the Santa Ana Elks' clubhouse, according to Exalted Ruler Harold L. Brown.

Three teams, representing the Santa Ana, Orange and Anaheim lodges, will vie for the honor of representing Orange county in the district elimination contest. The team from Anaheim lodge will go through the work, starting at 10 a. m., Brown said, and will be followed at 11 a. m. by the Orange team. Santa Ana will put on the work, starting at noon.

District Affair

At the same time four lodges in San Diego county will compete in San Diego. Just one week later teams representing lodges in Riverside and San Bernardino counties will compete in Riverside.

At a date to be set later, according to Brown, winners of each sectional competition will meet in a contest for selection of the team to represent the southern district in the state competition to be held in Pasadena, during the state convention to be held in September.

ONTARIO MINING BOOMS

KENORA, Ont.—(UP) — Mining claims filed in this area have doubled over last year and are well along toward an all-time high, it was indicated in registration reports. Two new precious metal rushes have been in large part responsible for the trend, officials said.

Approximately 4 per cent of the people in the United States are affected by thyroid illness.

ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MICROPHONE

WITH HOMER CANFIELD

"The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here—"

Hollywood, June 11—Out to the far-reaching finger tips of the broadcasting band has gone the fame of the Jesse Crawford—the Mr. and Mrs. of the best in organ music.

Last night they entered on a new adventure—the dance music making business. Their band, built around twin electric organs, opened amidst much fanfare at the Congress Hotel in Chicago.

Although they were not heard on the air locally, our midwestern sleuths tell us the "Poets of the Organ" scored an instantaneous success, and that they really have something new and distinctively different. Tonight you and I will have the opportunity to judge for ourselves when NBC carries a quarter-hour of their music. (KFI, 9:45.)

The instrumentation, even outside of the two organs, is unusual. It includes a euphonium, which Mr. Webster tells me is a small bass instrument of the saxhorn variety; French horns, oboes, bassoons, and a harmonica soloist augmented with Ray Robinson's brass section.

Even if it isn't good it'll be interesting. Crawford sidelihs: Jesse is a native of Woodland, Calif. . . . Born December 2, 1895. . . . Spent part of boyhood in orphanage. . . . At 9 was playing piano in orphanage sans benefit of formal lessons. . . . At 16 was playing piano in west coast theaters. . . . Two years later switched to organ with national fame soon following, climaxed by European tour.

As usual, sports rule the weekend. One major change tonight swings the Hollywood Legion fights over to KMTB. Starting time is the same (9:45) with the main bout bringing together welterweights Cefirino Garcia and Phil Furr.

Of importance tomorrow is the National Golf Open championship at Birmingham, Mich. Ted Husing and his assistants will be there to report the progress in half-hour periods at 9 a. m., noon and 3 p. m. Your station is KNX.

We also take a fancy to Mutual's release from Belmont Park and Washington Park. This is horse racing. The former track will run the Tremont and Shevlin Stakes (KJH, 11:30 a. m.) with the Princess Pat Handicap grabbing the spotlight in Chicago. (KJH, 2 p. m.)

Locally, the all-city high school track meet and circus in the Memorial Coliseum attracts attention. (KEHE, 1:30 p. m.)

The Latoria Derby at Covington, Ky., will not be heard locally. If you're interested, try KSL, Salt Lake, at 2 p. m.

"Fascism or Americanism" is the subject chosen by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana for his address before the annual meeting of the American Retail Club association in Chicago. (KJH, 5.)

The madcap Marxes—Groucho, Harpo and Chico—take over Hollywood Hotel for scenes from "A Day at the Races." Weber & Fields, Al Jolson and George Jessel are also down for guest turns. (KNX, 5.)

Edna Schallert interviews Edward Everett Horton. (KECA, 6:45.)

Now that Barbara Luddy is in Chicago with Les Tremayne as her new leading man, First Nighter picks a play about movieclad called "Anything Can Happen in Hollywood." (KFI, 6.)

David Broekman begins a new sponsored weekly. His music will be fittingly highlighted with the tenor voice of Jimmy Newell. (KJH, 7.)

Richard Himber tells the tale of the radio comedian who stepped away from the microphone during an audition and said to the yawning prospective sponsors:

"I don't mind when you constantly look at your watches to see what time it is, but it burns me up when you put them right close to your ears to see if they are still running!"

Maureen O'Connor will sing in Deanna Durbin's stand this Sunday night. The following week, Deanna will say farewell for the summer. We understand Maureen's appearance is in the nature of an audition. If dialers like her well enough, she'll grace the Texaco show during the warm spell.

To augment the daily series on "round effects" your midwesterner is running, listen to Cerefree Carnival. Jim Lyons, chief sound effects technician for NBC in San Francisco, will explain the important part which sound plays in the production of a program. (KFI, 8.)

With only three more broadcasts to go in her current series, we advise you not to miss out on Kay Thompson's broadcasts. Tonight the rhythm conscious Kay is down for "Where or When" and will lead her Singers through the measures of "Good Morning" and "Having a Wonderful Time." (KNX, 7:30.)

POST OFFICE EFFICIENCY?

Those who advocate government ownership for most everything and government control of production as a cure for all our ills, should explain the inconsistencies of our Post Office Department which is usually cited as an example of government efficiency.

Now Farley, at the head of the Post Office Department, has ruled the post office need not carry mail for those who do not have enough votes. They now have begun to buy votes with the post office.

It has been for years that Postmasters were appointed for the purpose of buying votes but now it has even gone so far that they will not deliver mail to those whom they think can deliver few votes.

What we are leading up to is the fact that Farley has recently ruled that the post office need not accept mail to be delivered to men who are working in the Republic Steel plant. These men do not see fit to contribute to the supporters who contributed a half million dollars to the election of the present President.

When it comes to the point where the Administration is openly and brazenly refusing to deliver mail to people who do not agree with them, as the workers do in the steel mills of the Republic Steel company, we have a nice example of inefficiency and what government ownership and control really means.

WONDERFUL, IF TRUE

A news dispatch from Concord, California, reports that Otto H. Mohr, an inventor, has completed a contrivance he says harnesses the sun's power; thus obtaining an unending supply of power, gas, electricity and refrigeration.

It is reported that hydrogen he obtains burns with a blue flame and is separated out of the water by the sun's rays and put into a container.

It is almost impossible to imagine the importance that any such invention would have that would harness the energy of the sun and adapt it to the use of mankind. It would revolutionize our whole method of living. No one knows but what something like this will come about eventually. If we only will leave the ingenuity of individuals to work things out instead of the state.

But the head of the present Administration says our industrial plant is built; that all social progress comes from legislation. Statements like these of course are absurd. It is the harnessing of the forces of nature that makes it possible for a higher and higher standard of living.

If Mr. Mohr is correct in his statement, it will be an invention that will make it possible for people to live as they never dreamed of living before—provided the crowd of people will permit men of genius to go ahead and develop the forces of nature for the benefits of mankind.

AIM OF EDUCATION

To our mind, the aim of education should largely be to develop the child or person to be educated so that he would know whom to believe, both as to honesty and as to soundness of judgment; whether to believe his own judgment or that of another; to know when he does not know, is the beginning of education for any individual. This is necessary because no one can know very much and it is necessary for an individual to rely upon the judgment of others in the great majority of things.

As Pope said, "the greatest study of mankind is man."

The man or woman who knows whom to believe, whether to believe an individual or the majority, or the crowd, is on the road to success.

Of course the great majority of people will never become very well educated. With this as a test, the educational aim should be to develop, insofar as possible, the individual's ability to discern between the merits of opinions and beliefs.

Better Jobs For All

—By R. C. HOILES

Lewis Objects to Proposed Labor Laws

The inconsistency of those who claim they will greatly benefit labor and make better jobs for all if given control, is evidenced by Lewis' complaint to the proposed Black-Canery Labor bill, sponsored by the Administration.

Lewis is in favor of the government regulating minimum wages and maximum hours but he objects to the government regulating wages above the minimum.

Of course, if the government regulates wages above the minimum there would then be no need for such men as Lewis, Green and Bridges. Their ability to dictate and arbitrarily control the lives of the individuals would be lost to them. To this, of course, they object. They are not really interested in the welfare of all the people but only interested in "kidding" themselves into believing they are important factors in helping humanity live better. We cannot see why any group of workers should have special privileges—should receive more than their share of service, render to humanity—than other groups receive.

The minimum wage law would make it so that the slow worker, if he secured a job must receive a minimum hourly wage no matter how much he produced. His unit reward, if he is to be employed, would of necessity be higher than the piece, or unit, pay of the fast and skillful worker. This would be true because the hourly scale would be set so high and the slow worker would do such a small amount that if all workers were paid on the same unit basis as the slow workers, then the total pay for all workers would be greater than the total production. This, of course, on the face of it would be impossible for any length of time. The result would be that the slow workers would either not have a job or their rate would be higher per unit than the fast workers.

The whole idea of trying to pay any particular group an arbitrary hourly wage, no matter what they produce, is to our mind the essence of inconsistency and absurdity. Why should the slow worker, who is not in demand, be told that he cannot sell his services at the same rate per unit, per piece, that the rapid efficient worker is willing to sell his services for?

Let the advocates of minimum wages answer this absurdity. There is no answer of course. It is just the ravings of people who want to pose as being benefactors to humanity and know of no way of being important before the world than to attempt to pass, by law, rules that would benefit the poor. Instead of benefiting the poor, it would in reality be most detrimental in the long run to the poor. It could, for the reason that many of the slowest would not be able to work at what they could produce, and as a result the total production of all workers would be less and the real struggle for existence would be more difficult; as a consequence, eventually the slow and the poor would perish. If this minimum wage law is for the purpose of eventually eliminating the inefficient so that the average intelligence of society would be higher, it is a practical method.

Can any of the advocates of minimum wages explain why the sale of the earth—people who can do things—should be rewarded less for the service they render to society as a whole when they work for an employer and produce wealth than the inefficient receive?

Real democracy certainly means no class legislation but pure democracy invariably means that the inefficient should be coddled so that they can multiply rapidly and replenish the earth and bring down the average intelligence of the human species.

It is amusing to see these theorists and pretend-ers of great humanitarianism disagree and fight when they attempt to put their theories into operation. There is no plan to, over a long period of time, make it possible for the inefficient to live and enjoy life as the efficient can. Nature simply intended people to be different and the higher the state of civilization, the more different they will be; the lower the state, the more alike they will be. These self-appointed humanitarians have no solution for what they advocate. All they can do is to find fault and destroy in order to make themselves happy in the belief that they are really serving humanity.

Better jobs for all people do not come from artificial laws or from giving any group the right to control the lives of the individuals as to the right to work and develop their character.

Social Security

To our mind, social security is only relative. There is no such thing as absolute social security. The workers can best be secured in their jobs, not by arbitrary laws taking from and giving to another or by restricting production, but by laws that prevent the restriction of production. Nor can they be secured by laws that take the intricate and delicate instruments of production out of the hands of the doers and give them to the politicians, as we now do by taxation and by class legislation.

The workers can only be relatively secure by encouraging production and making it practically impossible for any group to regard too much of the production as their own personal property.

This can be done by laws that permit the delicate and intricate machinery to remain under the management of those with foresight so long as they regard their large holdings as a public trust to be used for the benefit of mankind, not for the present moment but for all time. That is, so long as they are stewards of their wealth and use it to increase wealth, it can be managed by the individuals who can make it increase the most rapidly, but when they do not so regard it as a stewardship with the right to do anything as their own right with the personal pleasure, then the government should prevent these actions by a method of a graduated tax on personal consumption.

This, to our mind, will provide the most social security and the best way in the long run to raise the real wages of all workers.

Anything About This In The New Crop Control Plan?

News Behind The News

BY PAUL MALLON

SUGAR

WASHINGTON, June 11. — A catchy new "compromise" on a supreme court packing has been waited softly within congress by White House wafers. It is likely to be the one pressed in the end, instead of the generally known compromise which are being publicly discussed.

This one has sugar all over it. The basic idea is this: There are ten sectional judicial circuits in the country, but only nine justices of the supreme court to preside over them. Orderly procedure requires the appointment of one or more justice so that each supreme court member will have one circuit under his jurisdiction. But procedure should be changed so that (and here is the concentrated saccharine for congressional palates), in the future, the justice for each circuit must be chosen from his sectional circuit court of appeals. Thus the court would eventually represent all sections of the country (and thus also will judicial patronage be opened to sections, particularly the south, where appointments have been scarce).

A second "but" in the proposition deals with the tough fact that the chief justice now presides over a circuit. It would obviously be unfair to appoint a chief justice from the same section of the country all the time, so orderly procedure would again require that the chief justice be made an eleventh member of the court, appointed from the nation at large.

EVENING UP

This is a well thought-out proposal which is the result of more than one sleepless night of official thinking. It sounds so orderly that it successfully disguises the fact that the president would get two additional supreme court appointments to uphold his legal interpretations.

The inside force of its appeal, however, is that it is politically insidious to southern and mid-western senators now opposing all court packing.

The present supreme court is composed of justices from the following states: New York, three (Hughes, Stone, Cardozo), Kentucky, (Brandeis), who really was appointed from Massachusetts), Tennessee (McReynolds, who really was appointed from New York), Utah, Minnesota and Pennsylvania (Sutherland, Butler and Roberts, respectively). A vacancy now exists for the Van Devanter appointment from Wyoming.

The talked-of "compromise" would prevent any new appointments from New York for a long time, and would force appointments from circuits not now represented on the court, including: Central Atlantic seaboard states, the south central states (Oklahoma, Kansas, etc.), and the southern states.

PROMOTION LIST

There is something behind mildly printed rumors that Ambassador Hugh Gibson in Switzerland may be brought back here as under-secretary of state. At present, the talk really represents interdepartmental official discussion of such a possibility, with a fair chance that it may work out. Gibson rates as an unusually valuable career man. He has been stationed at the "listening post of the world," which is the league of nations headquarters. The only hitch is that the bigger job here pays $2000 less money annually than he now receives. If this proves insurmountable, Gibson might be slated for Berlin, where Ambassador Dodd may soon find it convenient to retire.

Other career men on the private state department list for promotion are: Ray Atherton, counselor at London; John Campbell White, consul general at Calcutta; J. Pierpont Moffatt, consul general at Sydney.

NO JOKES

It may be the heat and it may be the stupidity, but something has lately disturbed the normal good humor and friendly contact among a number of officials around the White House. Trusted pals have in some cases become just pals, and in other cases, not even that.

Close observers are inclined to blame the official spy system within the government. It is so extensive that very little goes unreported to the powers-that-be. Official and unofficial reporters and just plain voluntary eavesdroppers seem to be working on a commission basis.

But it is so inefficient and bitter, a number of recent experiences indicate that the authorities are in some cases being misled. What the government seems to need is more accurate and less prejudiced spies. There is, for instance, the case of a staunch senatorial supporter of the president, who does not believe in all administration proposals, but makes the best of them. Unfortunately, he is an incorrigible "kisser" and certain chiding remarks he dropped recently were passed along to the top without the humorous twist he originally gave them. He is so scared now he always officially labels his jokes as such.

LOYALTY

Mr. R. is being quoted as saying the selection of a New York mayor is a local matter (although he laughed outright at the suggestion of Senator Copeland as the Democratic nominee). A couple of Tammany district leaders were in to see him earlier about another nomination. They wanted his help prevailing upon Senator Wagner to run.

His reply, as they are passing it around officially to their friends, was substantially this:

He would like to prevail upon Wagner, but would do nothing to hurt his friend, Mayor La Guardia.

You can imagine what effect that had on the Tammanyites, who went back to New York with their Democratic spirits drooping.

Little Benny's Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

We were having arithmetic in school and Miss Kitty said, "I wish you boys would learn to take your additions and subtractions more seriously. You seem to forget that one little mistake will upset an entire problem just as a defective foundation will bring a whole building toppling down. And please remember that a realization of the value of figures is the real secret of economy, and believe me economy is a mighty important word in modern life. Who can give me a definition of the word economy?" she said.

Wich Puds Simpkins waved his hand, saying, Economy means not spending all your money in one place.

I'm afraid people who have an impulse to do that are hopelessly beyond the reach of economy, Miss Kitty said. The general idea of economy is to make money go a long way. Now that should be a very good hint, and now suppose somebody gave you 10 cents, I want somebody to give me a practical example of how they would economize with it, she said.

Wich Sam Cross waved his hand, saying, I'd hurry up and buy 10 cents worth of chewing gum, nothing lasts longer than that.

That's a very good example of false economy, because in a very short time you would have neither your money or your chewing gum, Miss Kitty said. Surely somebody can do better than that, she said.

Meaning she wanted another example, and I waved my hand, saying, I'd invest it in some investment that paid a hundred per cent a day, and I wouldn't spend anything but the interest, so the capital would practically last forever.

No doubt that's a wonderful idea for a man who lives in the clouds, but is it practical? Everybody who thinks Benny's idea is practical please raise their hands, Miss Kitty said.

Wich everybody raised their hands including me and Miss Kitty quick started the geography lesson.

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

THE DESTRUCTIVE CHILD

"What in the world? Who cut the curtains?"
"I did mother. It was me."
"Why did you do such a thing, Christy?"

"I just felt like it, I guess."
"It was very wrong of you. Very. You did a wrong thing and it will give father and me a lot of trouble. Father has to work hard to get the money for this house, and I take care of you and Helen and Dick. The curtains belong to us all, and you spoiled them. You must never do such a thing, Christy. Remember. Never do such a thing again. You must not destroy things that belong to other people, even when you share in them. It is very wrong think for anybody to do. Remember?"

"Yes'm. Yes, mother."
"But because you told me the truth I am not going to punish you. You were a good boy to speak right up and tell me the truth about it. That is more important than the curtains. Now go play like a good boy."

Two days later mother found the table-cloth fringed precisely as the curtains had been. She did not ask this time who did it. "Christy, come here! You cut the table-cloth. Why are you so naughty? I told you when you cut the curtains how wrong it was and now you go and destroy the table-cloth."

"I just like it, mother."
"Well, it is time you learned not to feel like it. This time you will have to be punished."

Christy began to whimper. "You said you would not punish me because I told you the truth."
"Christy, it is not telling the truth when you do what you know is wrong, do it when you think I cannot see you, and then, to save you the punishment, confess you didn't. That is not being truthful, really. This time you have to feel the consequences of what you did."

"What are you going to do to me, mother?"
"Let you do all you can to make good the damage you did to the family—father and me, and Helen and Dick. I was going to take you to the shop tomorrow to buy you a new suit. Remember? Instead I shall spend the money for new curtains. You will have to wear the old clothes until we get new curtains and a new table-cloth."

"I don't think it's fair. You said if I told the truth you would not punish me. Now you punish me. I want my new suit." Christy cried with all the might of his lusty lungs. But mother let him cry.

Christy must learn that there are truths within truths and that there can be no shuffling of them in the name of righteousness. When children find that they can take advantage of any situation they usually do so, if they are intelligent. We must be alert to see that they do not get into the way of using righteousness as a shield for wrong-doing. They are too inexperienced to understand the delicate shadings of behavior and we, being experienced, should be on guard to direct them. They are not bad, just natural.

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "A Book List," giving the titles of a wide variety of books all children should read. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Register Clearing House

(The articles under the Clearing House are published for the purpose of an exchange of ideas and are not necessarily the opinion of this newspaper. Contributors are urged to confine their articles to 300 words.)

Editor Register: I have read, with considerable interest, your column entitled "Better Jobs for All," and must admit that while it is an excellent study in economics, you overlook one point. An important point, too, one that is hard for Mr. Average Man to swallow.

When you speak of "better jobs," of course you mean improvement of a man's financial status. But just where is the dividing line between our present and an improved status? Is it not a fact that, how we use our income makes more difference than the amount we make?

The Constitution guarantees us life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. What constitutes "happiness" is largely, like religion, an individual matter. One man or woman can find happiness much more cheaply than another. Yet they may both be on the same job at the same rate of pay.

One man may be working at WPA wages, ($2.80 per month) supporting his family, paying all his bills on time, and even contributing a small amount to his church.

His neighbor may make $30.00 per week, be behind with his rent, owe the grocer, be delinquent on his utilities, owe the milkman and owe on his car, etc. It is all up to individual or family management.

Of course we all want more money than we have. But I can't say sympathetic with anyone who wastes his substance on a so-called "good time" or a flare for "keeping up with the Jones family," and then squawks about the "entrenched special interests" keeping him down.

I have seen too many men of moderate means, spend a dollar at a pool table that ought to have gone to the light company on a delinquent bill, fifteen cents for cigarettes that ought to have bought an extra quart of milk for his kids; dollars for beer and shows that ought to have bought his family shoes, and altogether too many trying to stay on a V-8 standard of living, on a wheelbarrow income. In fact I've seen too many with swelled heads.

We need to get back with both feet on the ground before we charge the "special interests" with taking our substance. Before we yell, "Tax dodger!" at the big fellow we should be sure our hands are clean, and we are not debt dodgers.

I notice that the government is putting up quite a yell about income tax dodgers right now. At the same time several states are passing mortgage moratorium laws to protect the little home owner. Why not an income-tax moratorium law?

I see Mr. Sharpless Walker through the Register Clearing House of June 8 takes a swat at the refunding done by former Secretary Mellon. Surely Mr. Walker cannot be ignorant of the law. In case of doubt on the amount of taxable income the victim must pay and then sue to recover. That is what was done.

Also Mr. Walker is displeased because that during the Coolidge administration a reduction was made in the higher brackets of income tax payers. He set this vicious raid on the treasury at about 1926.

Mr. Walker might be shocked to learn that in 1923 a certain Democratic U. S. senator came out and advocated that very thing. It was no less than that super-reactionary, ultra-conservative Senator King of Utah.

Here's hoping we get back to sane living soon.

GENERAL HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Mr. Franklini Waltman, who is doing a two-fisted job of columning for the Washington Post, commented yesterday on the doldrums at Capitol Hill.

He observed that after a long spring paralysis, induced by the controversial court-reorganization bill, and just as the wilting heat of a Washington summer begins to take the tucker out of the legislative hill-billies, suddenly a flock of pre-digested and very complex legislation partially remaking federal government comes up from the White House with instructions to expedite.

"Can it be," asks Mr. Waltman, "that there is a hidden reason for holding back on such proposals and then unleashing them on congress late in the session? Can it be that the reason is to get hasty action without opportunity for searching inquiry and study? Is the purpose deliberately to create confusion so that neither the legislators nor the country will know too much about what the New Deal is doing?"

"The absurdity of the Congressional performance is that Capitol Hill is just now—when the weather is hot and sticky, when tempers are frayed and when human vitality is nearing its lowest—preparing to get down to serious business of legislating for the nation. And then, of course, in a month or two, we will witness night sessions and the railroad of legislation with hasty or no consideration at all."

The present Praetorian guards who are preparing these far-reaching bills and flinging them through congress, are having a fine time—with their tongues thrust so far in their cheeks that it looks like an epidemic of mumps.

The deliberate and cynical strategy that affords the most amusingly legislated straggle is the wages and hours bill. The joke is that, while loudly proclaiming it a reparation of N.R.A., they know it is N.R.A. ten-times intensified and nothing but N.R.A. The strategy is to smear N.R.A. at every opportunity and then commend this bill as its complete antithesis. The overwhelming difference the government will do it. No in the industries fix wages while here about three pages of simple direct English—but that wouldn't do the strategists. They had to put false whiskers and blue cheaters on it and dress it up in female garments.

Nobody likes a slicker. Such tactics do this administration no ultimate good.
